Further Expansion Needed At John Vianney Seminary

Still further expansion of St. John Vianney Minor Seminary and greatly increased high school facilities.

These are the two major goals of the 1962 Development Fund Campaign of the Diocese of Miami announced this week by Bishop Coleman F. Carroll. Three specific projects were named as the most critically-urgent for construction by the Diocese this year. They are:

● A building providing another new dormitory and a larger Chapel for St. John Vianney Minor Seminary.

● A new high school at Fort Myers, which will be the first Catholic high school on the West coast of the Diocese.

● High school facilities for girls at the Monsignor Pace High School, North Dade County, where only boys are now enrolled, to make it co-institutional.

In addition, Bishop Carroll said, there is a great and immediate need for these projects:

● Cardinal Gibbons High School, Fort Lauderdale — additions to both the boys' and the girls' facilities.

● LaSalle High School for boys, Southeast Miami — additions.

● Immaculata Academy for girls, Southeast Miami — additions.

● Notre Dame Academy for girls, Northeast Miami — Additions.

A minimum goal of one million dollars has been set for this year's Development Fund Campaign, although construction cost of all the projects mentioned would be well in excess of that amount. The final figure for the 1961 Development Fund Campaign was $1,030,000.

Father Lamar Genovar, pastor of Our Lady Queen of Martyrs parish, Fort Lauderdale, has been appointed as representative and coordinator for the Bishop in the campaign this year, a capacity in which he also served last year.

Frank Mackle has been named as General Chairman for the drive and Anthony Abraham as General Co-Chairman.

PASTORS MEET

Under the direction of Father Genovar, Mr. Mackle and Mr. Abraham an organization of priests and laymen is being created throughout the Diocese to operate on Deanery and parish levels. An Advance Gifts phase of the campaign will begin shortly, to be followed by a Special Gifts phase.

The General Phase of the campaign will give the thousands of families residing in the Diocese, as well as many of the seasonal transient visitors, an opportunity to participate.

This activity will come to a climax on Sunday, March 4, to be known as "Stay at Home Sunday." At that time an army of more than 5,000 men and women will make personal calls at every Catholic home in the Diocese in order to give every Catholic

3—Missionaries Murdered In Brutal Congolese Attack

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (NC) — Congolese troops have murdered 11 missionary priests and seven African Sisters in the worst outbreak of violence against the Catholic missions since this strife-torn nation became independent a year and a half ago.

The priests and nuns were killed along with a large number of Africans in the city of Kongolo in secessionist Katanga province, according to reports which were conflicting.

Some said the priests and nuns were killed by central government troops. Others said the assassins were soldiers loyal to Antoine Gizenga, pro-communist leader of Oriental province and ousted vice premier of the central government who was placed under house arrest (Jan. 14) by central government soldiers in Stanleyville, capital of Oriental province.

NO IDENTIFICATION

None of the reports identified the victims. The only missionary priests in Kongolo, however, were 15 Belgian priests of the Congregation of the Holy Ghost. There was also one Holy Ghost Brother, also a Belgian. Kongolo is the See city of Bishop Gustave Bouve, C.S.Sp., a native of Belgium.

There were 34 Sisters in the city belonging to the congregations of the Daughters of the Cross and of the Sisters of the Holy and Immaculate Heart of Mary.

According to dispatches, the massacre was reported to Archbishop Louis Van Steene, W.F., of Bukavu by missionaries who had escaped from Kongolo to Bukavu, 225 miles away.

Reports state that the murder took place on January 1.

On that date President Moise Tshombe of Katanga said that Katangese troops had evacuated Kongolo and that central government troops had invaded the area, killing hundreds of persons and burning villages as they advanced on the city.

Missioners reaching Bukavu reportedly said that the bodies of all 18 murdered priests and nuns had been recovered. Another missioner was taken away, they reported, and has

Pope Mourns Missionaries Slain In Congo

VATICAN CITY — Pope John XXIII likened the massacre of a score of missionaries in the Congo to a killing of Abel by Cain.

Addressing his general audience, the Pope said the slaughter in Kongolo in modern Katanga was repetition of the very beginnings of human societies — "brothers killing brothers."

"Abel is well represented by these missionaries," he said.

Gripped by emotion, the Pope added:

"In the face of facts of this kind, do you want the Father of the Catholic family to be silent? It is the heart of the Vicar of Christ which speaks. Eyes must stream with tears for what has happened."

Pope John appealed to all present for prayers for the murdered missionaries.

Earlier, the full membership of the Central Preparatory Commission of the Ecumenical Council recited De Profundis for victims and Congolese people.

Priests Of Diocese To Hear Bishop Wright Talk On Unity

Bishop John J. Wright, of Pittsburgh, will speak to all the priests of the Diocese of Miami next week on the forthcoming Ecumenical Council and the efforts of the Holy See to bring about Christian unity.

He will give a series of talks on that general subject during the semi-annual Conference of Priests to be held on Thursday and Friday, Jan. 25 and 26, at the St. John Vianney Minor Seminary. Sessions will be conducted on each of the two days from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Bishop Wright is a recognized authority on the Second Vatican Council which was convoked late in December by Pope John XXIII to meet during 1962 beginning at a date as yet unspecified.

PREPARE AGENDA

At this gathering of the hierarchy from throughout the entire world, the Holy Father said, the Council will give the Church the "possibility of contributing more efficaciously to the solution of problems of the modern age."

The Pittsburgh prelate has been serving as a member of the Theological Commission of the Ecumenical Council. Its task has been to prepare the agenda of the Council in matters of faith and morals.

"This means the whole area of dogma and morality, the creed and the code of Catholic Christianity," Bishop Wright explained. "Our commission has been at work in regular sessions for over a year and it is made up of over two score members from all over the world."

LECTURES ON UNITY

Following one of his visits to Rome for meetings of the commission during the past year, Bishop Wright stopped in Ireland to give a series of lectures on Christian unity. He gave four days of lectures on the subject at the Maynooth Union Summer School at St. Patrick's Col-

PITTSBURGH Bishop John J. Wright will speak on the Ecumenical Council when diocesan clergy hold their semi-annual meeting, Jan. 25.

AT RELIGIOUS RALLY JAN. 27

Throngs To Hear Bishop Boza

A four-day religious observance for the Spanish-speaking persons in the Greater Miami area will begin with a triduum of prayer on Wednesday, Jan. 24, and conclude during Solemn Pontifical Mass in Miami Stadium, Saturday, Jan. 27.

Bishop Coleman F. Carroll will sing the Mass at an altar which will be erected in the center of the stadium field. A mile-long procession of Latin-Americans carrying lighted torches will originate at the Dade County Armory Parade Grounds and will enter the stadium during public recitation of the Rosary.

Highlight of the "Concentra-tion Religiosa" sponsored by the Diocese of Miami will be the appearance and sermon of Auxiliary Bishop Eduardo Boza Masvidal of Havana, number one religious exile from Cuba who last September was physically expelled and sent to Spain by the communist forces of Premier Fidel Castro.

FEARLESS CRITICISM

Known for his outspoken and fearless criticisms of the Castro regime, Bishop Boza will come to Miami from Bogota, Colombia, and will be the guest of Bishop Carroll during his first visit to the United States. Thousands of Cuban refugees are expected to join with other Latin Americans in the rally ex-lege in Maynooth. At that time he addressed more than 100 priests from the United States, Australia, England and Ireland.

The Bishop pointed out that the obstacles to the return of Protestant groups to communion with the Holy See are not only religious but also sociological and historical. The problem, he said, is that of reconciling the dictates of a conciliatory spirit with the clear duties of fidelity to the apostolic faith. The opportunity is the area of greatly increased charity, patience and understanding, he declared, adding that if there could not be immediate unity of faith, there must be unity of love expressing itself in common efforts in social, cultural, economic and political relations.

Later addressing a meeting of the Archdiocesan Teachers' Institute in Boston, Bishop Wright gave advice on attitudes that will help to reunite all Christians.

SPIRIT OF CONCORD

"Catholics should have tact," he said, "so that the spirit of concord will hasten the day when our prayers and those of the other Christian churches will be united. We should consider where our attitudes may be offensive."

At the Reformation, he said, the Church did not lose its unity or sanctity, "but the Church was impoverished by the loss of the people in whose descendants we find so many qualities that we admire."

Bishop Wright has been a prominent figure in previous gatherings in the Diocese of Miami. Last September he delivered the sermon at the Mass held in connection with the Labor Day Observance sponsored by the Diocese, and in 1960 he delivered the sermon at the Red Mass celebrated at the Miami Beach Auditorium during the convention of the American Bar Association.

NAMED BISHOP

A native of Boston, Bishop Wright studied at the Boston Latin School, Boston College, St. John's Seminary, Brighton, and later as secretary to the late William Cardinal O'Connell and Archbishop (now Cardinal) Richard Cushing, both of Boston.

He was consecrated as Auxiliary Bishop of Boston in 1947 and was named as the first Bishop of Worcester in 1959. He became the eighth Bishop of Pittsburgh March 18, 1959.

Bishop Wright is an officer of the French Legion of Honor and is a member of the Order of Merit of Italy.

Among the other numerous positions he has held have been Episcopal Moderator of the Mariological Society; Episcopal Advisor of Lay Retreat Movement and Assistant Chairman of the Education Board of the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

Priest Named Latin Bureau Co-Director

EXECUTIVE Secretary of the U. S. Bishop's Committee for Migrant Workers, Msgr. W. J. Quinn, has been named co-director of the National Catholic Welfare Conference's Latin America Bureau.

WASHINGTON (NC) — Msgr. William J. Quinn of Chicago, active among Spanish-speaking U. S. Catholics, has been named codirector of the National Catholic Welfare Conference's Latin America Bureau.

The Monsignor, executive secretary of the U. S. Bishops' Committee for Migrant Workers and a widely known lecturer, will have joint responsibility with Father John J. Considine, M.M., director, in conducting the bureau's business.

The bureau is the liaison office between the United States Bishops and the Bishops of Latin America.

Russian Orthodox Tactics Linked With Soviet Policy

NEW YORK (NC) — The Russian Orthodox Church joined the World Council of Churches recently to promote tenets of Soviet foreign policy and to form a common front against Russian Catholicism, according to a reference paper distributed in the U. S. and Canada by the American Committee for Liberation.

It also states that the Soviets' anti-Catholic activities have been stepped up because of a fear that the forthcoming Second Vatican Council will issue an official condemnation of communism.

The paper was compiled by the Institute for the Study of the USSR in Munich, Germany, described as "a free corporation of scholars who have left the Soviet Union." The institute issues a journal edited by a professor B. Ivanov.

FORMER FEDERAL OFFICIAL

President of the American Committee for Liberation is Howland Sargent, a former State Department official concerned with U. S. information programs abroad.

The Russian Orthodox Church was admitted to membership in the World Council of Churches on Nov. 20, 1961.

"Attacks on the Vatican which have recently been appearing in the Soviet ecclesiastical and secular press indicate that the Moscow Patriarchate has joined the World Council of Churches not only to promote the basic theses of Soviet foreign policy but to promote the formation of a common front against Russian Catholicism as an irreconcilable opponent of the materialist world outlook and communist doctrine," the reference paper states.

COUNTER MOVE

"This is apparently one reason," the paper continues, "why the Moscow Patriarchate is so active in defending the concept of a federative ecclesiastical union in the ecumenical movement as a counter to the concept of a centralized union as proposed by the Roman Catholic Church."

Nuns, Priests Killed In Congo

not been heard from since. The missionaries were reported to have told Archbishop Van Steene that the troops involved were those of the central government.

They said the soldiers beat the priests and nuns before they killed them with automatic weapons.

In Leopoldville, the Congo's capital, Premier Cyrille Adoula of the central government said he had reports that troops led by Col. Joseph Pakassa, Gizenga's cousin, were responsible for the slaughter.

(A broadcast over the Belgian radio indicated the troops loyal to Gizenga were responsible.)

OTHER VIOLENCE

A week after the massacre, a report from Kamituga in Kivu province said that two people were injured when a mob attacked a group going to church and threw rocks at the church doors.

The Kongolo killings occurred after a lull in the antimissionary violence that took place early in 1961.

While the first part of 1961 witnessed the flight of missionaries from violence-racked stretches of land covering a third of the Congo's vast territory, the second part of the year witnessed their gradual return.

By the end of the year, most of the missionaries who had been forced from their posts had returned.

In January, fighting drove missionaries from three missions in North Katanga. This was intertribal warfare in various parts of the Congo after the departure of the former Belgian rulers in the middle of 1960.

The announcement in February of the death of Premier Lumumba, who had been kept in detention since his deposition in 1960, touched off riots and persecution wherever his followers had a free hand. They were in power in parts of Oriental, Kasai, Katanga and Kivu provinces.

On Feb. 14, about 40 White Fathers and White Sisters were arrested and abused in the region of Kasongo, capital of the region of Maniema in Kivu province.

A day later, a region of Kasai province known as the Sankuru became the scene of antimissionary violence. An armed rabble of officerless Congolese soldiers and unemployed youths destroyed the mission of Makula-Kulu.

On Feb. 16, the parish of Kadutu near Kivu's provincial capital of Eukavu came under attack. While the pastor went for help, the attackers broke into the mission house and hunted down the priests. They seized one of them, Father Rene De Vos, W. F., and murdered him.

On Feb. 17, the Oriental province town of Basoko saw Sacred Heart priests arrested, beaten and deported. On Feb. 20, Father Joseph H. Tegels, C.S.J., was murdered in Basoko.

On Feb. 25 in Kivu, a convent of nuns was attacked. But the local people intervened and four of the attackers were killed before the assault was repulsed.

In March all the Passionist missionaries in the Diocese of Tshombe and virtually all the Sacred Hearts (Picpus) Fathers in Kole apostolic prefecture were forced to leave.

Seventy-seven missionaries in Sankuru were evacuated by the United Nations force there on April 4.

June witnessed the destruction by mutinous soldiers of Kafumbe mission in Katanga's Lac Moero prefecture.

During the fighting in Katanga in December a number of schools, hospitals, social centers and churches were hit by shells. Two Sisters were wounded and one priest, an Italian missionary of the Pauline Congregation, was killed. Mission work often came to a halt as the missionaries came to the aid of the sick and wounded.

Bishop Carroll's Appeal For Orphans And Needy

My Beloved Clergy and Faithful:

At this time of year, you are accustomed to hear your Bishop remind you of our mutual obligation to render assistance to the little children in the Diocese who have been deprived of parents and home and the ordinary blessings enjoyed by most of us in childhood.

As you know, this sacred trust is considered so important by us that a number of our devoted Sisters are dedicating their lives in several institutions to the care and training of orphans and needy children. In the past, we have been acutely aware of our limitations in this merciful undertaking, but even so, much was accomplished, for which we owe our beloved faithful a debt of gratitude.

This year we have the happiness of awaiting the opening of St. Joseph's Villa which has been established for the purpose of extending charitable help to more needy children and creating more of a home life atmosphere for them.

I need not remind you how deserving a little child is of all the love and attention we can give him. Perhaps at no time is charity more generous or the motive of giving more pure than when we see Christ in these children, some of whom, like Him, are refugees and homeless; others, like Him, experiencing suffering at an early age.

I appeal to you with the utmost confidence in your abiding interest in these little ones. The collection to be taken up on Sunday, January 21st, will enable us to bring happiness and guidance into the lives of these unfortunate children.

Asking God to reward your generosity in His own loving way, I remain

Devotedly yours in Christ,

Coleman J. Carroll

CATHOLIC CHARITIES collection taken up annually in churches and chapels of the diocese aids in a constantly expanding program for orphans, handicapped children and others in need.

Appeal for Catholic Charities Throughout Diocese Sunday

The annual appeal for funds to continue the vital work of diocesan Catholic Charities will be made in all parish and mission churches of South Florida Sunday, Jan. 21.

On one day each year the faithful are called upon to aid in the constantly expanding program conducted by Catholic Charities for orphans, handicapped children and others in serious need.

By their annual sacrificial gifts in past years, Catholics of the Miami Diocese have made possible the facilities now available but the rapid increase in the Catholic population of South Florida has "created an acute need to expand the services of Catholic Charities to other areas of the diocese," according to Father Bryan O. Walsh, diocesan director of Catholic Charities.

"The inability of the United Fund drive in Dade County to raise sufficient funds for the needs of the Catholic Welfare Bureau in Miami necessitates this collection," Father Walsh said. A similar bureau is maintained in the Fort Lauderdale area, and Catholic Charities maintains such institutions as St. Joseph Villa for dependent children, St. Vincent Hall for unwed mothers and the Morning Star Schools for Handicapped Children located in West Palm Beach and Miami Springs.

Licensed by the State of Florida as a child-caring and child-placing agency, the Catholic Welfare Bureau arranges for the reception of children and directs the placing of them in homes which meet bureau specifications.

During the past two years the staff and facilities of the organization have been additionally taxed with the arrival of thousands of Cuban refugees, most of whom are Catholics.

Syrian Envoy Appointed

VATICAN CITY (NC) — Pope John XXIII has appointed Archbishop Luigi Punzo as Apostolic Internuncio to Syria — the first papal envoy since Syria broke away from the United Arab Republic last September.

Patriarch Of Goa Reported Planning Return To Portugal

GOA (NC) — The head of the Church in Goa, Archbishop Jose Veiera Alvernaz, is reported planning to leave for Lisbon.

The prelate, 64, who holds the title of Patriarch of the East Indies, is allowed the freedom of the city and promised protection by the Indian authorities who have taken over administration of the former Portuguese territory.

He is remaining within his residence, however.

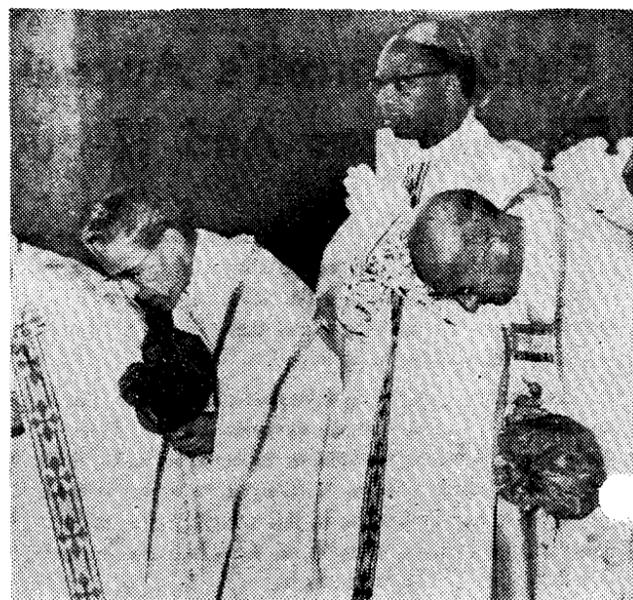

The Patriarch was recently subjected to insults. Two men accosted him and denounced him for not visiting the Indian prisoners. One of the men was a former seminarian, a Goan and a prisoner, the other was a Hindu who called himself a communist.

When the villagers at the scene saw this affront to a man who is known throughout Goa for his work among the poor they gathered around him to kiss his ring. Meanwhile two foreign journalists were hurt in the scuffle as they held back the Patriarch's assailants. Later the assailants apologized to the Patriarch.

The Apostolic Internuncio to India, Archbishop James R. Knox, has appealed through the press of Goa for clothing and blankets for the prisoners captured during the Indian invasion. The Discalced Carmelite Fathers, Auxiliaries of the Red Cross and other persons responded to his appeal.

Earlier the Internuncio had gone on a mission of charity on behalf of Pope John XXIII to the internment camps, bringing cigarets and sports equipment.

An international Catholic charitable unit will be set up in Goa to extend assistance to the needy regardless of religion. All work of reconstruction or expansion on Church property in Goa is at a temporary standstill. Contributions that the Church had received for its work from the Portuguese government have now ceased.

Catholics Give Protestants Cross For Sharing Church

AUGSBURG, Germany (NC) — Catholics in a small Bavarian community who have shared their church with Protestants for several centuries have now donated a cherished cross for the altar in the new church the Protestants are completing.

It happened in the town of Deiningen near here. The gift was accompanied by the comment of the Catholic pastor that, though his congregation found it difficult to part with their cross, they deemed it a fitting gift as a symbol of their deep desire for Christian reunion. The common church arrangement with the Lutherans of Deiningen had been in force for 345 years.

Germany has other examples of shared churches. In Meissen in Soviet-controlled East Germany, even a cathedral is used by both Catholics and Lutherans. There, behind the Iron Curtain, a uniquely partitioned edifice is a symbol of Christian unity in the face of godless communism.

In Saxony the Lutherans predominate, and they have secured the right for themselves to use the Meissen cathedral for their services because they have no local place of worship of their own. Catholic Bishop Otto Spuelbeck of Meissen readily consents to the arrangement in a spirit of Christian fellowship.

The church has three naves and it is divided in half by a wooden fence which cuts it in the middle. The front section toward the main altar belongs to the Catholics who agree among themselves to choose different hours so as not to disturb one another.

Each sector of the church has a choir loft and organ of its own. The Lutheran altar is located in the center of the middle nave. When the Lutheran pastor preaches he turns back on the Catholic sector, but when a priest preaches from the main altar he faces the whole church — as though he were typifying the unity of Christianity in the universal Church.

Protestants, Jews To Join Catholics In Encyclical Study

CHICAGO (NC) — National Protestant and Jewish groups are joining with Catholics to promote study of Pope John XXIII's social encyclical Mater et Magistra.

The board of the National Council of Churches of Christ has purchased 10,000 copies of the encyclical for distribution to U. S. Protestant leaders.

The American Jewish Committee in a statement expressed hope for cooperation with Catholics and Protestants in a "joint study" of the encyclical's recommendations.

These developments were disclosed here at a meeting of the board of directors of the National Catholic Social Action Conference who met to map plans for the observance of 1962 as an "encyclical year" devoted to study of Mater et Magistra, whose English title is "Christianity and Social Progress."

The board expressed "gratification" at steps taken by Protestant and Jewish groups to "lay the groundwork for intergroup cooperation with Catholics in all matters pertaining to the civic welfare of local, national and international communities."

It was reported that the Catholic Social Action Conference's executive committee is making plans to clear the way for joint conferences and panel discussions at which Catholics, Protestants and Jews involved in social action will participate jointly.

The statement on cooperation of the American Jewish Committee, as made public at the Catholic group's meeting, said:

"In the spirit of mutual regard and cooperation, and motivated by the high Biblical tradition of prophetic justice, the American Jewish Committee has expressed its hopes of cooperating with representatives of the Catholic and Protestant communities in programs devoted to a joint study of principles of social

"It is the hope and intention of the American Jewish Committee to stimulate study and discussion of the social teachings embodied in Mater et Magistra among its chapters in major cities throughout the United States."

The Catholic Social Action Conference also announced plans for its 1962 convention. The meeting will be held in Pittsburgh at Duquesne University, Aug. 23 to 26. Bishop John J. Wright of Pittsburgh will address the convention's closing dinner.

Be Generous To Orphans And Dependent Children

The year 'round a group of dedicated Sisters and zealous lay people are engaged in the sometimes sad, but consoling work of caring for orphan and needy children in the diocese. We hear little about them until the day rolls 'round on which traditionally their Christ-like work and their pressing need for assistance are brought home to our people, in order to enlist their ever generous help.

This coming Sunday is the day when the annual collection is taken up in all parishes in support of the extensive program carried on by the Diocesan Catholic Charities, including the care provided for the orphans and the needy and handicapped children. Especially are we proud of the rapidly rising new St. Joseph Villa in Perrine, made possible through the contributions in last year's Diocesan Development Fund. This new home, which will be opened soon, will extend its arms to many more dependent children than ever before.

In his letter concerning the collection, Bishop Carroll said, "I need not remind you how deserving a little child is of the love and attention we can give him. Perhaps at no time is charity more generous or the motive of giving more pure than when we see Christ in these children, some of whom, like Him, are refugees and homeless; others, like Him, are experiencing suffering at an early age."

We are indeed obliged to love all our neighbors. But some by the very nature of their predicament more easily appeal to the heart, more deeply stir pity and sympathy. These little children fall into this category. Our tradition of mercy towards them will surely be strengthened and given new honor as we come again to their relief.

Peril To Private Schools

Some people who have not followed very closely the extremely important debate on federal aid to education have been shocked to learn that the entire private school system in the United States can in the foreseeable future be destroyed if the government limits its financial assistance only to public schools.

This is not an idle statement. At the dedication of a school last Sunday, Bishop Coleman F. Carroll reminded the Catholic parents assembled there that their sacrificial donations alone made possible the new institution, while at the same time they are carrying out their obligation to support the public school system. He stated that if federal aid is channeled to public schools only, then a third burden will be placed on their shoulders. He added, "if such a program were to go into effect, it is my belief that it would soon bring about the end of the private school system."

This most disturbing thought merits the careful consideration of every adult in the diocese. Again we urge you to become better acquainted with the issues involved and be able intelligently to discuss the matters with others. After all, this potential legislation will affect the homes, education and the bread and butter plans of most Catholic homes.

Very helpful information can be found in the recent study released by the Legal Department of the NCWC in Washington which after an exhaustive study of the whole question came to the conclusion that a general program of federal aid to education which includes church-related schools is constitutional. It shows in detail how any such program of aid that ignores the private school "discriminates against children attending non-public schools."

This study gives the startling information that Catholic parents saved the nation $1.8 billion in the year of 1960 alone by building their own schools which otherwise would have caused a huge additional tax burden to all Americans.

Catholics should inform themselves of these facts in order that they may be able to draw their own conclusions and make their wishes known to their legislators. This is one of those vital matters which should not be ignored in the hope of someone else will take care of it.

Crusade For Auto Safety

A civic project under way in Miami at present which is worthy of everyone's cooperation is the Auto Safety Crusade. Its purpose is to emphasize careful, courteous driving as a means of reducing accidents. It will do this through a series of public programs designed to bring home to all of us the moral responsibilities involved in driving.

The more we ponder the carnage on the road nowadays, the more it seems that safe driving is closely related to the practice of love of neighbor. For instance, St. Paul gave us a blueprint of love in action in 1st Corinthians, Chapter 13, which could well be applied as a description of a conscientious, careful driver.

Such a driver is "patient," the first descriptive adjective Paul puts on love of neighbor, which means of course he is willing to hold down his impulse to show or inform the other guy how stupid he is. He is "kind," remembering that even the bungling driver is a human being and deserves consideration. He "does not envy" the fellow who passed him so fast that he is determined to catch him at the next corner.

He is not pretentious, not puffed up, which means he is not one of those road menaces who want to show off their high cylinder job and make others feel they are traveling in ox-carts. He is not "ambitious," that is, he does not mind too much if someone else leads the pack down the street. He "is not self-seeking," refusing to take his half of the road out of the middle. He "thinks no evil," and therefore wastes no time reflecting on how to teach the thoughtless driver a lesson that will scare the hair off his head. He "bears with all things . . . endures all things," not allowing anger to becloud his judgment and cause a reckless turn or maneuver, and refuses to make an issue out of every incident on the road that irritates him. He "hopeth all things" . . . that some day once again it may be a pleasure to take a drive in a car.

The Auto Safety Crusade should win our cooperation and remind us that love of neighbor still binds us when in an automobile.

Role Of Laity In The Church Important Topic For Council

By Fr. John B. SHEERIN

The role of the laity in the Church is a subject that will loom large on the agenda of the Second Vatican Council. One of the most enlightening discussions of this topic can be found in the pastoral issued by the Bishops of Holland at Christmas, 1960.

Addressing their attention to the faithful, they encouraged discussion of the Council and outlined "the area in which your talk, your writings and your thought about the coming Council" should be contained — if they are to be true to the spirit of the Church.

The Dutch bishops point out that an adjustment of the apostolate is being requested by priests and laity to take account of the changed circumstances of the times. This adjustment, according to the Bishops, must be based on a correct understanding of the essential structure of the Church as contrasted with the accretion of customs, attitudes and practices that have grown up around the Church and are only temporary. The aim will be not only to make the Church more effective but also more attractive so that it will achieve that "splendid form" by which, as Pope John says, she will become "a gentle invitation" to others.

This desire for true reform will mean criticism by the faithful and the Bishops say that they realize that zeal for the house of God will underlie "the frankness with which the believer complains about certain shortcomings in the Church." They have no intention of suppressing this "public opinion" but they ask only that it be competent, loyal and loving, free from bitterness and resentment and reluctant to point out the mistakes of the Church.

I wish every American

Catholic would read this pastoral as we do need loving and competent discussion of the role of the layman in the Church in the United States. By accident of history we have come to think that the layman is merely the passive object of the Church's concern. In the early days of this country, for the most part only the clergy were educated and so they were hesitant to depute responsible apostolic work to the laity.

Today the situation is altogether different with doctors, lawyers and Ph. D.s in almost every parish. Yet we still hear jokes about our Catholic Action as "the apathy of the laity to the inertia of the clergy" or as "the organized interference of the clergy in the apostolic mission of the laity."

That the layman is not an ordained priest is crystal clear. But he is by the very fact of Baptism an apostle. As the Dutch Bishops say: "One cannot therefore support a distinction in the Church between the laity and the clergy with the fact that the clergy must take care of God's Kingdom while the laity, as the passive object of this care, is characterized by a secular mission." The laity have the duty to manifest the grace of Christ to the world about them.

The pastoral refers to the problem of "the Church's confrontation with the order of life within the world." It sees a marvelous opportunity opening up before the Church. For the first time in history, men seek a world-wide order for society and the universality of Christian love has "its first great opportunity to bear real fruit with modern efficiency."

Moreover, the Bishops also show that the Church is confronted by Marxist, humanist and existentialist philosophies: while the Church cannot identify itself with these philosophies, it can lay a finger upon the truths found in these movements and reveal them as the source of the persuasiveness of the false philosophies.

Don't Expect Schools To Do Parents' Job

By FR. JAMES J. WALSH

Some parents expect more wonders to be worked out in our Catholic schools than the Church does. You might say they have more faith in our schools than the Church does, which is really going some, because the Church never lets up in her emphasis on the importance of a Catholic education.

Father Walsh

These parents expect the schools to perform miracles, especially in the character formation of their children. The Church does not. The parents think of the school as the first and most effective means of training children. The Church says this is not true, that the home instead ranks before the school as a training ground.

Many young parents instinctively assume the role of teachers in the home, but they are quick to surrender to a school teacher some essential duties which should be carried out only by themselves.

Take the matter of character formation or moral training. Sound psychologists who have studied the moral development of children agree that from the months of infancy on the child is greatly influenced by what he hears and sees in the home. His mind is far more sensitive than it appears to be. He constantly receives impressions which leave their mark for good or bad.

Even when the child seems to have ingenuity enough only to shake a rattle and turn over, the words and actions of parents are setting up mental patterns in his mind. Even then he is forming a code of conduct which will later influence his own thoughts and deeds.

"Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old, he will not depart from it." This is ancient wisdom borne out by experience. No school can ever take the place of parents in these earliest years, only the parents can run the classroom in the home. As they speak and act, the child learns and character develops.

In the light of this isn't it easy to see what a great responsibility parents have to let themselves be guided by moral principles in all their home dealings? The infant absorbs silently the home drama being played out. The older child, with the wax-like mind, with natural gifts of imitation, shows clearly what he is learning from the teachers in the home.

Parents may shout for hours about what is right and wrong, but if they themselves have no respect for the same rule of conduct, their angry sermons are merely hot air. The power of the mother and father lies not in speeches, but in deeds.

If they insist on children saying morning and night prayers and neglect to do so themselves, the children will form no lasting habit. If they get the youngsters ready for Mass and stay home themselves, later on the children will do the same. The father may loudly demand that a boy go to confession, but if he hasn't been there for a year, the boy will not be impressed with its importance.

Children are slapped for using "bad language," but how can they consider such words wrong when the parents spice their conversations with the same expressions? The boy especially is lectured about the evil of stealing. No wonder he becomes confused when he hears his father bragging about putting over a shady business deal on someone.

Day by day, the moral principles, right and wrong, are taught in home life in every word and attitude and action of the mother and father. The meaning of good and evil is deeply impressed on the little ones by listening, by seeing how the parents treat each other, how they speak of neighbors, how they regard the church, the priesthood, the parish.

The school can do nothing more than supplement good home training or contradict bad example found in the home. Every teacher knows that if the home fails to provide the right kind of moral example, he is helpless to cope with the problem. Or, as often happens, if children are faithful to religious duties during school years, when carried along with the crowd, not long after graduation they usually fall back into the parents' pattern of neglect.

Catholic homes, no matter how poor or heavily burdened, have all the super-natural, spiritual help needed to create the right atmosphere for the moral growth of their children. Of course, this is not easy. It demands self-restraint on the part of parents. It requires less talk and more action.

They have to be less selfish, more mindful of the children. They must put their faith in God to work in the home, making Christ the head of the house, seeing His laws as their own guide to family peace, using family prayers as a means of binding the members together as they grow to maturity.

This training cannot be found in even our excellent schools. Only the home can provide it.

AN ALTAR BOY NAMED "SPECK"

"All right—Whose going to repent first?"

Why You Can't Afford Not To Meditate

By FR. KILIAN MCGOWAN, C.P.

Ask any saint. Ask any writer learned in spiritual things. Ask any sinner who has returned to the fold of Christ. All will tell you that reformation of life or transformation of character is impossible without prayer. They all know too of the amazing changes that occur in the life of anyone that forms the habit of intimate, heart-to-heart conversation with Christ.

Father Kilian

Today's column is a plea for 15 minutes daily of this loving conversation with Our Lord. We don't mean vocal prayer; rather we believe that interior prayer or meditation is an absolute necessity for spiritual survival today. All this means is a lifting up of your mind and heart to Christ in a sanctifying conversation.

BE YOU PERFECT

If you have a memory, a mind and a heart, you can do it. And you should. Later on, a simple method easy enough for anyone will be given here.

There are two great reasons why you should pray in this manner. The first is that it's the only way to stay in conscious contact with Christ. Every sincere seeker of Christ wants to get into contact with Him as soon and as perfectly as possible. Furthermore, He wants to maintain this active contact so as to develop a loving friendship with Our Lord leading to a partnership with Him in all one's daily activities.

This is obviously impossible unless there is frequent and daily contact with the mind and heart of Christ. Without prayer there will never be that prayerful reflection on Christ that leads to an ever-increasing love and imitation of Him. Without prayer, a man will never receive those honest insights into himself and his life that mark the beginnings of a more profound conversion to the ways of God.

A second basic reason for the necessity of mental prayer is found in the words of Our Savior: "Pray lest you enter into temptation." After repeating the same sentence St. Teresa of Avila adds in her "Interior Castle": "He who neglects mental prayer needs not a devil to carry him to hell, but he brings himself there by his own hands." St. Alphonsus Liguori states that "it is morally impossible for him who neglects meditation to live without sin."

St. Peter of Alcantara sums up some of the benefits of meditation in the following words: "In mental prayer, the souls is purified from its sins ... nourished with charity ... confirmed in faith ... and strengthened in hope ... The mind expands ... the heart is purified ... temptation is conquered ... sadness is dispelled ... drooping powers revive ... tepidity ceases ... and the rust of vice disappears." (Treatise on Prayer)

Don't say that you haven't time. The busier you are the more you need this kind of prayer. Without it you're like a spiritual cripple just staggering along on your road to eternal life. With it you'll accomplish twice as much as before — spiritually and otherwise. Meditation is an absolute must for sane daily living. It will put order, peace and refreshment into your everyday life. What's more, it will put Christ there — where He belongs!

Pope John And The Industry Council Plan

By MSGR. GEORGE G. HIGGINS

Some commentators on the new social encyclical, "Mater et Magistra," ("Christianity and Social Progress") have observed that Pope John XXIII seems to be less interested in the so-called Industry Council Plan than was Pope Pius XI. This is only partially true.

Pope John, in Msgr. Higgins "Mater et Magistra," carefully avoids giving his approval to any particular method of organizing or reorganizing economic life. Moreover even his terminology is somewhat different from that of Pius XI in his encyclical "Quadragesimo Anno" and in his later encyclical on communism, "Divini Redemptoris." Pius XI used the terminology of "corporatism" which, in English, has been freely translated into the Industry Council Plan.

Pope John XXIII, on the other

THE YARDSTICK

hand, carefully avoids using the corporative terminology employed by Pius XI.

The reason for this, according to Father Gerald Dion of Laval University in Quebec, is that Pope John is mostly preoccupied with the practical aspects of the problem. "He is a pastor and not a jurist," said Father Dion.

"He knows all the discussions" raised by the formulae of Pius XI and Pius XII and the misunderstandings caused by these discussions. So he keeps from any formulizing and even goes so far as to avoid using the words 'corporation' and 'corporative organization.' "

It would be a serious mistake to conclude that Pope John is any less interested than was Pius XI in the basic principles of social reconstruction underlying the so-called Industry Council Plan. The basic principles of social reconstruction outlined in "Mater et Magistra" are the same as those which are to be found in Pius XI's encyclical "Quadragesimo Anno." Father Dion summarizes them as follows:

"Economic order will not come naturally, only by free competition, free enterprise and free initiative, although a certain degree of freedom must always be safeguarded. Intermediate bodies are natural and necessary if we want to avoid State totalitarianism. Institutional cooperation at all levels must be organized between the agents of the economy. Intermediate bodies must cooperate among themselves and with the government in order to help it play its positive role in the economy for the common good, national and international."

These are the basic principles underlying the Industry Council Plan. Pope John doesn't tell us, in detail, how they are to be put into practice. His approach,

I repeat, is very flexible. In the words of Father Dion, "Pope John opens the doors to all kinds of institutional cooperation among those interested at the different levels of production, strongly insisting on any organization of the economy, which takes into account the national and international common good."

"The State has a positive role to play and this role must be accomplished with respect for legitimate autonomies and with the participation of all interested groups."

In substance, this is what proponents of the Industry Council Plan have been saying all along. They have definitely been on the right track. At times, perhaps, their approach and their terminology have been a little too inflexible. If so, the new encyclical "Mater et Magistra" can serve as a timely corrective. I repeat, however, that the new encyclical should not be interpreted to mean that these principles underlying the Industry Council Plan are no longer of any great importance.

Details of the 1962 campaign were explained by Bishop Carroll at a recent meeting of all the pastors of the Diocese. He expressed his deepest gratitude for their cooperation during last year's successful drive and gave an accounting of the funds which were raised.

SEMINARY

A large part of the money went for the construction of the new Refectory and Science Building at St. John Vianney Minor Seminary. When it was opened in September, 1959, there was an initial enrollment of 67 young men. Because of the great increase in applicants for admission, the first Diocesan Development Fund Campaign in 1960 was called upon to raise funds for an addition doubling the seminary's capacity; for a new College Building and for a new Faculty Residence.

As a result of the 1961 development drive, the new Refectory and Science Building were constructed. To the present time, Bishop Carroll told the pastors, total expenditures at the minor seminary have been about $1,700,000. Based upon the present enrollment of 170 students, that would be at the rate of $10,000 per student for the priesthood.

With applications for admission next September still increasing, a Seminary Committee, under the direction of Msgr. William Barry, P.A., looked into the growing problem of how to take care of more students. After considerable study of the matter, the committee submitted a recommendation for additional dormitory facilities and for larger Chapel space since the present Chapel has already been filled to capacity.

"When I first came to Miami," Bishop Carroll declared, "I stated that our greatest need was for more priests. God surely has answered our prayers. The young men are offering their lives to the service of the Church in the Diocese, and the very least we can do is to accept them and provide adequate quarters and proper accommodations for them."

The other major project completed as a result of funds raised in the 1961 Development Fund Campaign, the Bishop said, is the new St. Joseph Villa, home for dependent children, now nearing completion at Perrine.

Marriage Lectures To Start In 4 Areas Of The Diocese

A pre-Lenten series of marriage instructions will be conducted at four locations in the Miami Diocese for the benefit of persons planning to be married within six months and those recently married.

The diocesan program was announced this week by Msgr. Robert W. Schiefen, director of the Family Life Bureau. He said instructions will begin on Monday, Feb. 5 in the Little Flower auditorium, Coral Gables, and at St. Thomas Aquinas High School, Fort Lauderdale; and on Feb. 6 in St. Mary Cathedral parish hall, Miami and St. Juliana parish hall, West Palm Beach.

In each center, where instructions will begin at 8 p.m., three lectures will be given outlining and discussing the proper preparation for marriage and offering guides for the successful living of Christian family life. Speakers will include priests, physicians and married couples.

Since the classes will provide instructions for large groups of persons, the program will lessen the task of priests in individual parishes who ordinarily give the instructions privately. A certificate is awarded to each per-

Stadium Throngs To Hear Exiled Cuban Bishop Speak

pected to attract more than 40,000 persons.

Evening devotions which comprise the triduum of prayer will be conducted nightly, Jan. 24, 25 and 26 in eight parishes of the Greater Miami area. Confessions will be heard during the triduum as well as before Mass in the Miami Stadium in preparation for the observance.

Spanish speaking priests now stationed in South Florida will conduct devotions in Gesu Church, Corpus Christi Church, SS. Peter and Paul Church, St. Michael the Archangel Church, St. Brendan Church; St. Agnes Church, Key Biscayne; Immaculate Conception Church, Hialeah and the Church of the Little Flower, Coral Gables.

Cuban refugees in San Juan, Puerto Rico, recently heard Bishop Boza urge them to unite spiritually in their fight for freedom and social justice.

EXPRESSES HOPE

The prelate, who was received in audience by Pope John XXIII in October of last year following his expulsion with 131 priests and Brothers from Cuba, flew to San Juan from Bogota for a three-day visit during which he advised members of Catholic Organizations on questions pertaining to apostolic work.

"The object of my meeting with them," the prelate stated, "is mainly to inspire them with confidence, so that they do not disintegrate but continue working and forming themselves spiritually to constitute just one people, although dispersed in different countries."

Bishop Boza said Premier Fidel Castro's recent admission that he is a Communist is helpful from one point of view because it gives his sympathizers no excuse to say he is not a Red. According to the Bishop, who is a native of Cuba, there are only about 120 priests in all of the island to minister to the spiritual needs of about six million Catholics. He expressed the hope that the Cuban people would not have to resist the communist regime too much longer.

LAUNCHES BULLETIN

In Bogota, Bishop Boza has launched a monthly bulletin for distribution to Cuban Catholics in exile. "Everything that nourishes hate is an aid to the enemy," he said in the first issue.

"Love, first between those of us who think alike, overcomes defects and errors. We must also love those who do not think as we do, because only love is fruitful and constructive. If some have done harm, God will call them to account for their wrong. It is up to us to say daily with a sincere heart: Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us."

A Spanish language program featuring messages from Bishop Boza has been inaugurated on radio station WWL in New Orleans.

Sponsored by the Cuban Freedom Committee to challenge the communist propaganda of the Cuban radio, tapes by Bishop Boza are presented each Sunday from 9:30 to 10 p.m. The Christian versus the Marxist conception of man and the need for creating a community of ideals in Latin America are emphasized.

Prelate Urges Bolivia Show Mourning Over Cuba Envoy

LA PAZ, Bolivia (NC) — Catholics in this South American country should greet the presence of an envoy from communist-dominated Cuba with a demonstration of mourning, a Bolivian prelate said here.

Archbishop Abel Antezana y Rojas, C.M.F., of La Paz was referring to the visit of Cuban Undersecretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos Olivares to Bolivia's President Victor Paz Estenssoro.

Olivares is visiting a number of Latin American nations in an effort to dissuade them from taking action against the regime of Cuba's Marxist Premier Fidel Castro at the Inter-American Conference opening in Puno.

Cardinal Again Criticizes Brazil's Stand On Castro

RIO DE JANEIRO (NC) — Jaime Cardinal de Barros Camara has again voiced criticism of Brazil's government for its refusal to take a stand against communism and the ta del Este, Uruguay, on Jan. 22.

The Archbishop said an attitude of mourning on the part of Bolivian Catholics would show their solidarity with the persecuted Church in Cuba. He also called for prayers for the conversion of communists.

Archbishop Antezana reminded Catholics here that it "is indispensable to take into consideration the painful reality that the communist government ruling Cuba does not represent Cuban Catholicism (the religion of the majority), but rather a minority which with an iron hand subjugates, persecutes, shoots, gags and exiles bishops, priests, Religious and the Catholic faithful."

Red regime of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro.

The Archbishop of Rio De Janeiro commented on reports that the government is opposed to strong action against Castro by the Inter-American Conference opening Jan. 22 in Punta del Este, Uruguay.

Brazil's Foreign Minister Santiago Dantas stated that sanctions against Cuba would deny its right of self-determination.

The Cardinal said:

"What a joke — this talk about 'self-determination!' It appears that this principle only applies when Soviet Russia approves and confirms, or when it at least serves Russia's iniquitous interests and perverse intentions."

Last November, Cardinal de Barros Camara praised Latin American nations that had broken diplomatic relations with Cuba and called for "moral sanctions" against the Castro government.

Andes Missioner's Lunches Winning Fight For Students

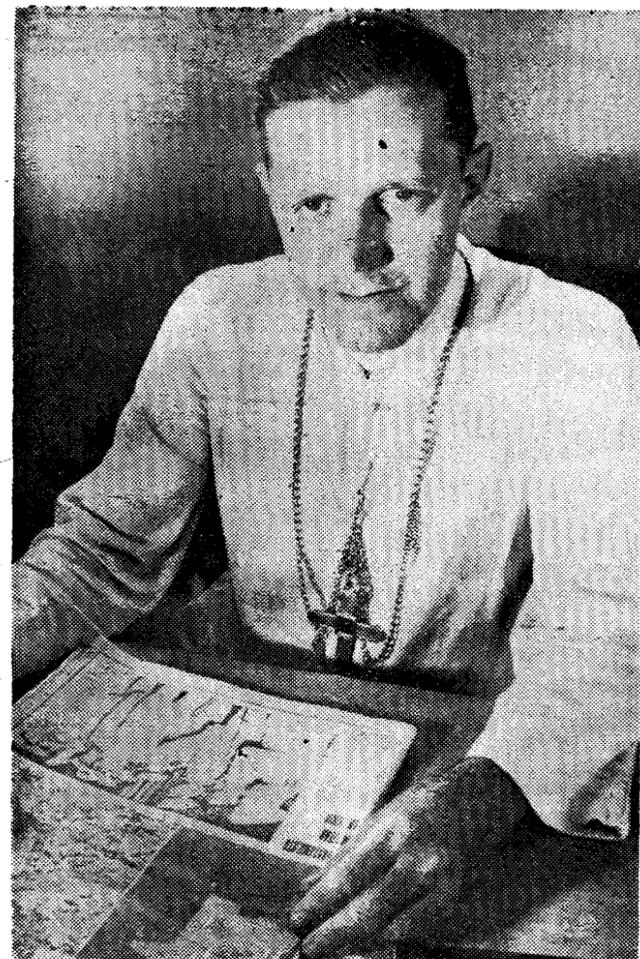

PUNO, Peru (NC) — School attendance has jumped 25 percent in this remote city in southern Peru, thanks to the efforts of a New York City missioner.

A veteran of 18 years in the missions of Peru, Father Robert E. Kearns, M.M., is directing a school lunch program here which is accomplishing what Peru's Ministry of Education has been trying to do for years — bring more Indian children into the classroom.

The New York Maryknollers is the organizer and coordinator of the vast program which aims to give two free meals a day to 70,000 students. A number of organizations are taking part in the operation, including the Peruvian and U.S. governments, Catholic Relief Services — National Catholic Welfare Conference and International Petroleum Company.

At present Father Kearns is feeding 26,000 students daily, including children in 50 schools operated by the Seventh Day Adventists in the Department of Puno. He hopes to feed 4,000 additional children by the end of the school year here.

EXILED PRELATE, Auxiliary Bishop Eduardo Boza Masvidal of Havana will come to Miami from Bogota, Colombia to participate in the Concentracion Religiosa planned for Jan. 27.

Castro Persecution Building Faith In God, Cuban Writes

The sufferings which most of the Cuban people now endure under the communist - controlled government of Fidel Castro may result in a stronger faith in God, according to a non-Catholic resident of the island.

In a letter to a Miami priest, the writer pointed out that Christmas was for the most part a "sad" occasion in Cuba.

Those who were able to buy the usual Christmas fare had children or other members of their families separated and living in many parts of the world or in prison," she related. "The poorer people celebrated their first communist Christmas with no pork, few chickens, no eggs, no butter, no oil, etc. Masses were held in all the churches which were full to overflowing.

"How sad it is that people have to suffer before they realize that nothing can be achieved without the power of God," the writer declared. "As a rule the churches here are noisy and little attention is paid to the service. This year you could hear a pin drop and there was no mad rush to leave the church at the first possible moment.

"It was as if they felt it was a refuge and that they were reluctant to leave the peace and safety of the church. Even I, though not a Catholic, have faith that this cannot last, but even so there are days when I question how is it that communism can have so much success."

Emphasizing that the Cuban families who remain on the island are "luckier" than those who have left, the writer, whose identity must remain secret, clarified her statements by pointing out that "They will have had an experience which could change their ideas as to the part religion should play in their lives, because this has to be lived; not explained to be understood."

Most Cubans, she continued, realize that communism is "one great lie and everything is said and done to further the anti - Christ forces throughout the world. Less food to lower their resistance, continual brainwashing when the resistance is low, military displays and big shows, and the lionizing of young people

The natives of Cuba still on the island could be a spearhead for a great anti - communist force in Latin America if they are assisted in liberating themselves, she added.

Red Cross Balked In Cuba

GENEVA (NC) — The International Red Cross has stated that it has been thwarted in its attempt to comply with a petition requesting aid for political prisoners in Cuba.

The petition was drawn up by the Committee for the Defense of Cuban Political Prisoners, headed by ousted Auxiliary Bishop Eduardo Boza Masvidal of Havana.

The Committee has asked the Red Cross to assure that provisions such as food, clothing and medicines be delivered to the prisoners. The petition also said that the prisoners in Cuba were terrorized by their jailers and limited in the number of visitors they could have.

Private School Survival At Stake

Following is the final article in a series condensing the study entitled "The Constitutionality of the Inclusion of Church-Related Schools in Federal Aid to Education." The study was prepared by the Legal Department of the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

From this study's review certain conclusions may be clearly drawn:

1. Education in church-related schools is a public function which, by its nature, is deserving of governmental support.

2. There exists no constitutional bar to aid to education in church-related schools in a degree proportionate to the value of the public function it performs. Such aid to the secular function may take the form of matching grants or long-term loans to institutions, or of scholarships, tuition payments, or tax benefits.

3. The parent and child have a constitutional right to choose a church-related educational institution meeting reasonable state requirements.

4. Government in the United States is without power to impose upon the people a single educational system in which all must participate.

These conclusions, drawn from the relevant Supreme Court decisions, represent only a part of the justification for aid to education in church-related schools.

What must also be considered are results which would flow from a denial of such aid exclusively to the public schools.

Some of these results would raise serious constitutional problems, while others would render meaningless certain constitutional protections presently enjoyed.

These results should be carefully pondered when any program of major Federal aid to education is being considered, because they would plainly entail a transformation of a free and pluralist American society into a society in which uniformity would be certain and freedom doubtful.

Massive spending solely for public schools would result in a critical weakening of church-related schools, ultimate closing of many of them.

If the No Establishment Clause of the First Amendment operates to exclude the inculcation of religion in the public schools, what, by constitutional definition, is "religion"?

MEANINGLESS DISTINCTION
To make a distinction based upon whether the religious value system embraced the supernatural would be meaningless and invidious.

Obviously, under an absolutist interpretation of the First Amendment, such value-inculcation must pose serious problems. Again, however, rationality should point to the solution.

But if value-teaching may, without First Amendment objection, be offered in the public schools which are supported completely by government, then it cannot be said that no government aid can be granted to education in church-related schools because the church-related schools, too, offer a program which inculcates values.

Several recent Supreme Court decisions show a hospitality change and a recognition the demands of justice are not necessarily met by such slogans as "freedom of contract," or "separate but equal" — or "separation of Church and State" (where that phrase is meant to denominate absolute separation).

The problems involved are predominantly practical: no constitutional bar exists to the aid herein described to education in church-related schools. Practicalities, not slogans, should govern the determinations to be made — determinations which give clear recognition to the rights of parents, the rights of children, the enlargement of freedom, and the preservation of the nation.

McCormack Favors Private School Loans But Backs Aid For Public Schools Only

WASHINGTON (NC) — The new Speaker of the House said here he favors U. S. loans to help parochial and other private schools, but he would vote for a bill which aided public schools only.

Rep. John McCormack of Massachusetts, former Majority Leader who was elected Speaker to succeed the late Rep. Sam Rayburn of Texas, made the statement to reporters.

McCormack, a Catholic, has been under attack by some newspapers and organizations, notably Protestants and Other Americans United for Separation of Church and State, because he announced support for private school loans at the last session, a proposal they oppose.

Opponents also charged that because of his belief in Federal loans for nonpublic schools, he would be prevented from supporting a public school assistance bill.

"I have always advocated school legislation and strengthening the whole elementary and secondary system. This includes both public and private schools," he said.

"I recognize that you can't legislate for private schools in the same way you can for public schools, but Congress can legislate specifically.

"In addition to public school aid, I advocate long-term loans at reasonable interest rates to private schools for building classrooms and for teachers' salaries, to teach science, mathematics and foreign languages.

"Assuming that a House committee reported out a bill without those provisions, however, I would vote for such a bill."

McCormack noted that other legislation before Congress calls for U. S. help for private as well as public colleges and universities.

'Across-The-Board' U.S. Aid Is Out, Kennedy Again Says

WASHINGTON (NC) — President Kennedy stressed again in his State of the Union message his belief that "across-the-board" U. S. aid to nonpublic schools is unconstitutional.

The Chief Executive's comment came in his appeal to congress to adopt the administration's $2.3 billion, three-year program of help for public schools.

The bill, providing assistance for construction and payment of teachers' salaries, passed the Senate last session, but did not come to the House floor because the House Rules Committee denied clearance for debate.

A watered-down version was prepared for House action, but members voted 242 to 169 not to consider it. The bill's feature was a one-year, $325 million program for public school construction.

The outlook for action on the President's new request remained dim after his address.

House education leaders have indicated they do not expect action on the bill this season because they hope to avoid the controversy in an election year. One of them, Rep. Adam Clayton Powell of New York, chairman of the House Education Committee, said that despite the President's address he still does not expect action.

President Kennedy's comment on the constitutionality of Federal aid to nonpublic — parochial and other private — schools came in this sentence in which he referred to the administration bill introduced last year:

"I believe the bill . . . offered the minimum amount required by our needs and — in terms of across-the-board aid — the maximum scope permitted by our Constitution."

He added: "I therefore see no reason to weaken or withdraw that bill; and I urge its passage at this session."

The Chief Executive's first statement that parochial and other private schools should be denied "across-the-board" aid came in February, 1961, in a message to Congress detailing his education proposals. At that time, he said:

"In accordance with the clear prohibition of the Constitution, no elementary or secondary school funds are allocated for constructing church schools or paying church school teachers' salaries."

This comment precipitated a major controversy in the past Congress, on the constitutionality of such aid.

New Nativity Church, School Dedicated By Bishop Carroll

Federal aid to education which includes only public institutions could eventually be responsible for the destruction of the entire private school system in the United States, Bishop Coleman F. Carroll said Sunday following the blessing of a new provisional church, an elementary school and two convents in Broward County.

The convent in St. Matthew parish, Hallandale was blessed at 2 p.m. and the Nativity Church, school and convent in Hollywood were blessed at 4 p.m. Pontifical Low Mass was offered in the new church immediately following dedication ceremonies.

Speaking to a congregation of more than 800 clergy, religious and laity, Bishop Carroll commended the parents of children enrolled in parochial schools and reminded them "that by your taxes you also share the burden of operating the public school system. Because you have the courage of your own convictions you have assumed these obligations," the Bishop declared.

"There is a determination on the part of the government to give federal aid to schools to assist them in construction and help them in paying teachers' salaries," Bishop Carroll continued. "That is its intention and desire. If the federal government gives money to public schools, that will be the equivalent of a third burden which you will be carrying.

"If such a program were to go into effect it is my belief that it would soon bring about the end of private school systems," he said. "This is a young parish developing at a rather rapid rate and it will be necessary to increase the school facilities in the very near future. If an additional burden is placed upon you by way of taxation it will make it difficult for you and your pastor to give the minimum in educational facilities in the parish.

"When the Bishops of this country call this injustice they are only calling it to your attention so that you may make your wishes known," Bishop Carroll declared.

"The Catholic Church is interested in public schools and interested and hopeful that they may be improved," the Bishop said.

"Federal aid is necessary in particular areas of the country but federal aid should be given not only to children who attend public schools but to those who attend private schools. If there is to be federal aid it should not be discriminatory but to all and for the benefit of all."

Bishop Carroll also addressed the hundreds of boys and girls attending the ceremonies in an appeal for additional vocations to the priesthood and Sisterhood. Urging each to pray daily that they will be blessed by God with a call to the religious life, Bishop Carroll reminded them that the "great shortage of priests and Sisters will continue unless parents recognize vocations as the greatest blessing that can come to a family and encourage and nurture vocations to the religious life in their homes."

Msgr. William Barry, P.A., pastor, St. Patrick parish, Miami Beach, preached the sermon during the Mass at which representatives of religious orders stationed in South Florida and clergy from parishes in Dade and Broward Counties assisted.

Nativity parish which had its beginnings in a tent was erected less than two years ago by Bishop Carroll who appointed Father Hugh Flynn as administrator. Masses were celebrated temporarily in a tent erected on a seven and a half acre tract of land adjoining Chaminade High School near the Hollywood Hills section.

Ground was broken for the newly blessed structures on June 18, 1961 at Johnson St. and 52nd Ave. The provisional Church designed by Miami architect, Thomas J. Madden, Jr., is a two story structure with temporary nave providing seating accommodations for 800 persons on the first floor.

The convents in both Nativity and St. Matthew parishes were designed by Wahl Snyder and Associates of Miami and are two-story structures providing seven bedrooms. Sisters, Servants of the Immaculate Heart of Mary of Monroe, Mich., staff Nativity School and Dominican Sisters of St. Catherine de Ricci of Albany, N. Y. instruct classes in St. Matthew School.

A Perfect Understanding

Throughout our years of service, Catholic families belonging to virtually every parish in Greater Miami have consistently called Lithgow Funeral Centers, time after time, as often as needed.

The continuing preference for Lithgow service by Catholic families previously served is positive proof that we have a perfect understanding of their needs, and that Lithgow service exceeds all requirements. It means, too, that Lithgow prices are considered to be fair and just; otherwise, we wouldn't be called again and again by these families!

FAMILY CLINIC

Should She Ask Him To Return?

My Non-Catholic husband left me and our four children a little over a year ago because I refused to go to work. Although his take-home pay was over $600 a month, his expensive hobby of collecting stamps took all the money. He said he earned it and it was his. To keep peace, I tried working but couldn't manage both job and home — I have a kidney infection and my last two children died at birth. When I quit working, he left to live with a woman who works. He sends barely enough money to support the children but won't visit them. How can I get him to visit the children, who miss him so badly, or to just come back and start over?

By FATHER JOHN L. THOMAS, S.J.

Although your letter offers little information about your married life together, Esther, it does tell us several significant things about the character of the man you married. In the first place, when a married man claims that the money he earns is his because he's the one that earned it, you have a clear indication that this man simply doesn't understand the meaning of marriage.

If the marriage contract means anything at all, it means that husband and wife solemnly agree to share life together — completely and without reservations. In this sense, a married couple can no longer say, "mine" or "yours," but only "ours."

For personal or cultural reasons, couples may follow various patterns determining who shall be responsible for handling the family income — husband, wife, or both together — yet there can be nothing arbitrary about the essential purposes for which it is used. Regardless of who earns it or assumes responsibility for handling it, it must be used for the good of the whole family. This point of justice is so obvious that only a person who refuses to accept the basic obligations inherent in the marriage contract could possibly ignore it.

Further, a father who doesn't bother to visit his young children demonstrates such a lack of natural affection and responsibility that we must characterize him as psychically and morally sick.

Regardless of the reasons for separation, the parental bond, based on the very nature of parenthood, remains strong in normal fathers and mothers. When this does not occur, we have a clear sign that the delinquent parent was either too selfish, immature, or irresponsible to accept the normal obligations of marriage.

He is obviously too self-centered or spiritually undeveloped to be concerned with what honest people may think of him, or with the scandal he is giving to the children God has entrusted to his care. Incidentally, the fact that he can "get away" with this without losing his job or being rejected by the community is a distressing commentary on contemporary society.

What does all this add up to? Well, Esther, you asked how you might get your husband to visit the children or to come back. I think it should be obvious that in dealing with such a man you have very little upon which you can rely. He refuses to talk to you or see his children, while his other actions indicate that he is not likely to be moved by appeals to decency or virtue.

Hence I would offer the following suggestions. First, you should see your parish priest about suing for separate maintenance in order to obtain legal protection relating to the adequate and continued support of yourself and children. Such action should not be conducted in a spirit of anger or revenge, but by marrying you and having children, your husband has incurred responsibilities that he is not free to escape.

Further, you may as well base your own plans for the future on the assumption that the present situation of separation will persist. There is nothing to be gained by wishful thinking or refusing to face facts — difficult as they may be.

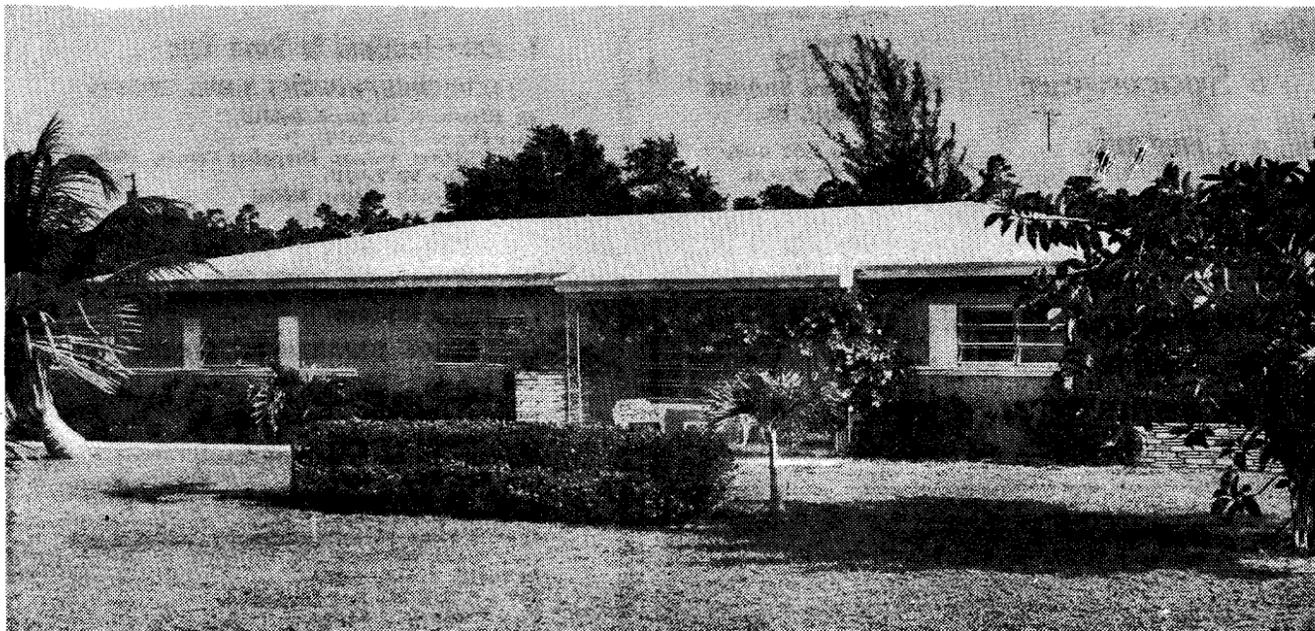

Like many other unfortunate mothers in our society, you must prepare yourself to raise your children alone. Should your husband come to his senses and return to his family, so much the better; but there is no indication that he will do so. It would be a serious mistake to continue living from day to day "as if" he were about to come back.

Finally, as you suggest in your letter, it will not be easy to explain this situation to your children. Most children can accept the death of their father without serious damage because they can still cherish his memory and be proud of him.

It is quite another matter when he deserts the family, for they are bound to interpret this as rejection. They then face a difficult emotional problem. Although they are naturally inclined to condemn him, they suffer a sense of guilt if they do — children are supposed to love and honor their parents.

Because the situation is evil, there's no real solution to their problem, but you can lessen its evil effects somewhat by concealing your normal feelings of resentment against him, and at least until the children are older and more emotionally secure, by indicating that the separation may be temporary. You will need a good deal of strength to carry on alone under the circumstances; but remember, Esther, you can rely on the grace of the sacrament to see you through successfully. God does not abandon those who trust in Him.

White-Tite Features Three-Coat Sealing Process For Gravel Roof

BEAUTIFUL WHITE GRAVEL roof on the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Marcil, 7251 S.W. 102nd St., was sealed and coated by White-Tite 10 months ago. White-Tite has an exclusive gravel process which guarantees the whitest, longest lasting coating possible. This is what is done in the White-Tite gravel roof process. First, the entire roof area is hand raked and the gravel is turned over to expose any mold or mildew. All missing gravel is replaced to bring the area to its original level. The first coating then is put on. This is a heavy spray of the White-Tite bonding process, is applied by hydraulic pressure. This material is thoroughly fungicided to kill the mold and fungus and prevent regrowth from beneath the coating. Next, a flood-coating of White-Tite interlocking sealer is applied by hydraulic pressure. This binds the gravel together and to the roof deck, permanently filling all pores. Each of these applications are completed on separate days with not less than 48 hours between coats to assure 100% bonding. A third White-Tite vinyl, fungicided finish coating is then applied to seal the entire roof . . . again, only on a dry surface. The completed gravel coating is unconditionally guaranteed for two years. This includes workmanship, material and re-growth of mold, mildew or fungus. You also receive a five-year warranty that we will re-do the job, any time up to five years after the original job, by washing the roof and entire premises, including walks, patios, awnings, etc. and repainting with two applications of White-Tite vinyl, fungicided finish top coat. This would again give renewed and lasting life to the roof for another four or five years. After original 3-coat process, a gravel roof can be cleaned just like a tile roof. The White-Tite gravel coating process is the only gravel coating which has been proved by pressure cleaning 32 months after being applied. When White-Tite does the job for you, they will return anytime for the next two years and clean your walks, walls, patio, awnings and screens free of charge. The reflectivity of your White-Tite coating is about 95 per cent of the infra-red rays of the sun. It will reduce the living area temperature of the building as much as 15 degrees in the hottest weather. White-Tite is "The World's Largest Roof Cleaning-Sealing-Coating Company." Jesse Scalzo, the founder and president of White-Tite, Inc., has had 15 years of experience in the roofing business. This experience and the reputation of White-Tite, Inc., guarantees you the finest roof coating, best service and best value. You can pay cash or finance your White-Tite coating. # Newman And St. Thomas Face Tough Teams Tonight

Cardinal Newman and St. Thomas High Schools face tough opponents on the road tonight while newcomer LaSalle High plays its first game in Dade County as the feature of tonight's Diocese high school basketball program.

Newman, which is now 8-3, meets Forest High, second-place team in the Suncoast Conference, while St. Thomas, 7-4, invades Miami Norland for a Gold Coast Conference Northern Division game.

LaSalle, a 48-35 loser to Pine Crest in the second game in the school's history, meets St. Patrick's at St. Pat's gym on Miami Beach.

Other games include Christopher Columbus at Key West tonight and Curley Host to Hialeah on Saturday at the Miami Jackson gym.

115-POINT WEEK

Newman received a 115-point effort from Bucky McGann last week in beating Miami Military, 72-40 (38), losing to Lake Worth, 66-60 (41), and defeating Florida Military, 68-62 (36).

St. Thomas notched a 59-51 victory over Palm Beach High with Rudy Ungerer hitting for 18 points. The Raiders played without the services of starter Dan Ryll.

LaSalle made its best showing in its young history as Lou de Catorriente scored 16 points, a new school record, in the loss to Pine Crest.

St. Patrick's, meanwhile playing without scoring ace Bob Dowling, fell easily to Miami Central by a 75-26 decision.

Mary Immaculate lost 73-28 to Jupiter and also dropped a decision to Marathon.

Curley returned to the victory column at the expense of Columbus, taking the Explorers 64-51 before a full house at the Columbus gym.

COUNTY LEADER

Carroll Williams got 12 first-half points to lead the early Knights' attack while Ed O'Donnell finished strong to take game honors with 19. Williams had a total of 16 for a season's average of 16.8, eighth best in Dade County.

Cardinal Gibbons High of Fort Lauderdale won its second game in the school's young history by whipping Tutor Hall, also Lauderdale, by a 38-28 margin.

THE VOICE OF Sports

JACK HOUGHTELING
Sports Editor

Coach Dick Pollock isn't discouraged.

Despite the fact that his Christopher Columbus High basketball team heads into tonight's game with a 0-7 record, he's still looking at the brighter side of life.

"I can't be discouraged. We only have Tim Korth back from last year. Four of our five starters never played basketball before," he explained.

"We lost Ted Schwider (6-5), Jim Kling and Dave McCammon from injuries and Bill Durney decided to pass up basketball in order to prepare for baseball. That took away all our experience and height.

A SCRAPPY BUNCH

"However, the kids did all right against Curley for an inexperienced team. They really scrapped."

Columbus led at one stage of the first quarter, and closed a Curley nine-point lead in the second quarter to a single point before settling for a 29-21 half-time deficit and a 64-51 defeat.

Pollock was full of praise for little Blas Uribe, his 5-8 guard who got 14 points against Curley.

"He's a good little boy, cool, calm and gives his best."

Dick is also happy over the progress of his junior varsity squad which has a 3-3 record including a victory over Curley's J.V. team.

"They're the first basketball players that we've had that haven't started with an inferiority complex. They really ran Southwest out of the gym.

"Hernandez, Phoebus, young Kling and Uribe, are good players. We'll do much better next year."

Pollock is giving some thought

CYO Stamp Crusade To Conclude Jan. 25

A CYO crusade to collect stamps for the missions will end officially Jan. 25.

Father Walter J. Dockerill, diocesan youth director, said the stamps must be turned over to deanery directors by that date.

The stamp crusade began during the Christmas season and since then CYO members have saved cancelled stamps to be turned over to mission societies which sell them to commercial distributors.

An award will be given to the parish group submitting the most stamps.

COACH DICK POLLOCK

to staging an invitational tournament for the Catholic high schools featuring just freshman-sophomore teams. The Explorers already are host to the Diocese grade school tournament which will be held late in February, so, finding a date for the meet is the major problem.

PERMISSION NEEDED

The tournament would include Chaminade, St. Thomas, Pace, LaSalle, St. Pat's, Curley and Columbus, and, if permission were granted from the Florida High School Activities Association, Cardinal Gibbons and Mary Immaculate varsities.

So, the losses haven't dimmed his enthusiasm.

AROUND THE DIOCESE ...

Columbus' Carter Burrus has applied for a Naval Academy appointment and there isn't any secret that the Navy is also interested in St. Thomas' Ted Dombrowski ... San Scarnecchia, former head football coach at Curley, was among the spectators at the Columbus-Curley basketball game ... Columbus hopes to install some acoustic material this summer to cut down the noise at the school's gym ... Mary Immaculate High of Key West has lost the services of Art Sutherland because of a knee injury ... Mary Immaculate, St. Patrick's and Chaminade will all be in the Class C Group 8 basketball tournament while Cardinal Newman, St. Thomas, Columbus, Curley and LaSalle have been assigned the Class A Group 8 meet.

Colecta Para la Beneficencia Católica

El llamamiento anual para recolectar fondos para continuar el trabajo vital de la Caridad Católica diocesana, se hará en el Sur de la Florida el 21 de enero en todas las parroquias e iglesias de misión.

Todos los años en un día, los fieles son llamados a prestar su ayuda para el programa de Caridad Católica a favor de los niños huérfanos, inválidos o con serias necesidades. Con sus generosas donaciones en los años pasados, los Católicos de la Diócesis de Miami, han hecho posible el haber alcanzado las facilidades existentes para atender estas necesidades de Beneficencia, pero el rápido aumento de la población Católica del Sur de la Florida, "ha creado una inaplazable necesidad de aumentar los servicios de la Beneficencia Católica a otras áreas de la Diócesis", dice el Padre Bryan O. Walsh, director de la Caridad.

"La imposibilidad de que el Fondo Unido en Dade County, consiga suficientes recursos para las necesidades de la Beneficencia Católica de Miami, hacen necesaria esta colecta", dice el Padre Walsh. Una oficina similar es mantenida en Fort Lauderdale y la Caridad Católica mantiene las instituciones de St. Joseph Villa para niños inválidos, St. Vicent Hall para madres solteras y Morning Star Schools para niños impedidos, este último está situado en West Palm Beach y Miami Springs.

La oficina de Beneficencia Católica, está aprobada por el Estado de la Florida, como una agencia para el cuidado y la colocación de los niños, arregla el recibo y dirige la colocación de ellos para que queden instalados en casas que llenen las especificaciones que se exigen.

Durante los dos años pasados, el manejo y las facilidades de la Organización han sido mermadas con el arribo de miles de refugiados cubanos, la mayoría de ellos Católicos. La oficina de Miami ha dado ayuda a los exilados proporcionándoles alojamiento, atención médica y ropas.

cesis norteamericanas. Parte de estos voluntarios estaban ya en sus destinos a fines de 1961, y los restantes se disponen a incorporarse en enero o febrero del año en curso. Prestarán sus servicios en ocho países latinoamericanos.

"Estas cifras", dice el cardenal Confalonieri en carta al Padre Considini, "dan un cuadro completo de la consoladora labor ya realizada en este campo, gracias al celo laudable de la Jerarquía Norteamericana y de los organizadores de la iniciativa. Nos ha complacido el hecho de que en la distribución de los voluntarios se haya tenido en cuenta las necesidades de los diversos países, de acuerdo con el criterio y las sugerencias de la Comisión Pontificia."

Elogio Cardenalicio a Voluntarios de S. S. el Papa Juan XXIII

WASHINGTON, (NC)— El Presidente de la Comisión Pontificia pro América Latina, Cardenal Carlo Confalonieri, elogia el plan de Voluntarios del Papa para Latinoamérica puesto en marcha por la Iglesia en los Estados Unidos.

Su eminencia, que es también secretario de la Sagrada Congregación Consistorial, acusa así recibo de un informe enviado por el R. P. John J. Considini MM, director en Washington de la Oficina para Latinoamérica de la National Catholic Welfare Conference.

El informe, redactado en Chicago por la secretaria nacional del VPLA da cuenta de la preparación en Estados Unidos de 112 voluntarios del Papa, procedentes de 40 dió-

Cien Mil Dólares a Radio Chilena en Santiago

WASHINGTON, (NC) Un donante anónimo de Estados Unidos dio $100.000 dólares para mejorar y ampliar las transmisiones de la estación católica Radio Chilena en Santiago.

Mons. Karl J. Alter, arzobispo de Cincinnati, actuó de intermediario. La donación, es específica que los fondos deben usarse durante un período de diez años al servicio de la radiodifusión católica según el programa que determine la Iglesia en Chile.

En una carta de gratitud a la Oficina para América Latina de la National Catholic Welfare Conference, Mons. Manuel Larraín, obispo de Talca y vice-Presidente del Consejo Episcopal Latinoamericano, declara que el donativo permitirá a Radio Chilena colocarse "entre las estaciones más poderosas de Chile.

Los trámites se realizaron entre la OAL y el presidente de la Acción Católica Chilena, Santiago Bruron, a la que pertenece la radioemisora.

La estructura geográfica de Chile —una larga y estrecha franja de 4.200 kilómetros de longitud, cerrada al Este por la barrera de los Andes— dificulta las transmisiones y sólo una alta potencia puede superarla. Hasta hace poco Radio Chilena funcionaba con una potencia de 12 kilowatts, en canal internacional.

Con el aporte se acerca Radio Chilena a la meta que Su Santidad el Papa Pío XII le señalara al inaugurarse en enero de 1954.

"Parécenos ver las ondas de vuestra nueva estación —dijo entonces a los católicos chilenos— cruzar a lo largo de vuestro hermoso Valle Central hasta los territorios norteños de Arica... y descender hacia Castro, Ancud y Tierra del Fuego... para luego remontarse sobre los Andes orgullosos y sus mudos y solitarios volcanes, llevando el Evangelio a vuestras naciones hermanas... hasta ofrecer al mundo un mensaje de verdad, un mensaje de caridad".

Es nuestra esperanza, agregaba el Pontífice de grata memoria, que Radio Chilena sirva para difundir especialmente la doctrina social de la Iglesia, "que tantos apóstoles tienen en Chile".

Los Pensamientos Bellos

Ruinas de un castillo medieval bañadas por un río. Lo que parecía permanente, yace por tierra. El río, lo fugitivo, es lo único que ahora permanece. El pensamiento es de un poeta.

Su aplicación al hombre. Sólo le sobrevive aquí lo más fugitivo del hombre: sus palabras, el río de plata, o de cieno, que corre cabe el castillo.

¿Quién sabe si el alma está en el Cielo y algunas de sus palabras siguen siendo venenosas!...

¿Quién sabe si el alma está en el Infierno y algunas de sus palabras siguen siendo misioneras!...

Para comprender la hermosura benéfica de un pensamiento bello y de un río hermoso, habría que ver con luz profética todas las flores bellas que ha su paso se han abierto y se han de abrir en el decurso de los siglos.

Entre todos los pensamientos que cruzan nuestra mente, los más hermosos son aquellos que no suelen o no pueden expresarse en fórmulas bellas. Por ejemplo: Dios se hizo niño y murió crucificado.

Es que las ideas divinas, enterradas en las palabras humanas, están tan escondidas a nuestros ojos como las almas en sus cuerpos.

En el orden moral, la mala tierra se mejora con buenas semillas; y cuanto más rica es la cosecha, más bien dispuesto queda el campo para producir otras mejores.

No desprecies los pensamientos que no comprendes; que lo que hoy te parece superficial o insulso, mañana te parecerá por ventura profundo y sustancioso.

Por eso es bueno releer ciertos escritos en circunstancias diversas; porque entonces, aunque la semilla sea la misma, el terreno y el clima es diferente.

Si estuvieran tan juntas las estrellas que no dejaran entre sí espacios negros, el cielo de la noche sería luminoso como prolongación del crepúsculo, y tendría sin duda más claridad que el cielo de nuestras noches estrelladas. Pero no sería "para el alma" tan luminoso, ni tan apto para tenerla suspensa en la contemplación del firmamento.

De un modo análogo, conviene que las ideas brillantes o profundas anden entremezcladas con las comunes en el escrito, para que en vez de una claridad fosforescente y uniforme, ofrezca nuestro estilo ese aspecto —siempre antiguo y siempre nuevo— del cielo estrellado.

El valor material de una idea puede excederse a todas las fortunas.

¿Qué es una invención, sino un pensamiento?

Las minas de oro más cuantiosas están... en el cerebro humano; y las riquezas más grandes de un país estriban ante todo "en los pensamientos de sus individuos".

Un solo pensamiento puede conmovir a todos los Bancos y Bolsas de la Tierra.

Triduo Preparatorio y Concentración Religiosa

El Triduo tiene por objeto el que todos nos preparemos a hacer una solemne demostración de fe católica, en la concentración religiosa del 27 de enero en el Estadio de Miami.

Sufrimientos de los Cubanos Dará una Fe en Dios más Firme

De los sufrimientos que la mayor parte de los cubanos han tenido que soportar durante el gobierno de Fidel Castro controlado por los comunistas, se espera que dé el resultado de una fe en Dios más firme, según escribe una residente no católica de la Isla.

En la carta dirigida a un sacerdote de Miami, la corresponsal cuenta, que la Navidad para la mayor parte de la gente en Cuba, fue un acontecimiento de tristeza. Aquellos a quienes les fue posible comprar algo para los niños, sufrían por la separación de familiares dispersos en distintos países del mundo y otros en prisión, la pobre gente pasó esta Navidad comunista sin cerdo, sin huevos, pocos pollos, sin mantequilla, sin aceite, etc. En todas las Iglesias hubo misas y se llenaron hasta desbordar.

"Es muy triste que la gente tenga que sufrir antes de realizar que nada puede conseguirse sin la ayuda de Dios, dice la carta. Aquí en las Iglesias por lo regular se oye ruido y poca atención se pone en los servicios religiosos; pero en este año se habría podido escuchar hasta la caída de un alfiler, tampoco hubo afán para dejar la Iglesia en el primer momento posible, parecía que todos sentían que la Iglesia era su refugio y nadie se encontraba deseoso de dejar este sitio de paz y de tranquilidad. Aun yo, que no soy católica, tengo esperanza de que esto no puede prolongarse, pero hay días en que me pregunto como es que el comunismo puede tener tanto éxito.

Haciendo énfasis en que las familias cubanas que han permanecido en la isla son más afortunadas que las que han salido, en el sentido de que esta experiencia los hace evaluar lo que es la religión en sus vidas, porque quienes están aquí la están viviendo y entendiendo sin necesidad de ninguna explicación.

La mayor parte de los cubanos han entendido que el comunismo es una gran mentira y que todas las cosas son hechas y dichas para avanzar las fuerzas del Anticristo a través del mundo. Escasez de alimentos para aminorar las resistencias, continuos lavados de cerebro cuando la resistencia es menor, paradas militares, grandes revistas y el envalentonamiento de la gente joven; son tácticas absolutamente comunistas.

Resulta Lícita "Doble" Boda

CIUDAD DEL VATICANO (NC)—Según funcionarios del Vaticano, resulta lícita la doble ceremonia nupcial en el próximo caso de la Princesa Sofía de Grecia y del Príncipe español Juan Carlos de Borbón.

Sofía es ortodoxa y Juan Carlos católico. Contraerán matrimonio el 14 de mayo en la iglesia católica de San Denis, de la capital griega; seguidamente se celebrará una "ceremonia nupcial" en la catedral ortodoxa de Atenas.

El cánón 1,063 del derecho canónico dice: "Si lo demanda la ley civil, la Iglesia no censura a las partes por aparecer ante un ministro no católico que actúe meramente como representante del gobierno, siempre y cuando lo hagan con el propósito de cumplir con la ley civil y lograr el reconocimiento civil del matrimonio."

Este puede ser el caso de la boda anunciada, pues en Grecia solamente surte efectos civiles el matrimonio contraído ante un sacerdote ortodoxo; así pues, la posterior ceremonia ortodoxa al vasarse Sofía y Juan Carlos viene a ser el reconocimiento civil del matrimonio católico.

En el Vaticano explicaron también que la dispensa para el matrimonio mixto, entre católico y no católico, suele otorgarse sin consultar a la Santa Sede, excepción hecha de cuando se trata de soberanos o príncipes.

Se da como seguro que hubo esta consulta para la boda de Sofía y Juan Carlos y que se otorgó la dispensa de matrimonio mixto.

Q. My husband, who is a convert, doesn't go along with the "No-Work-on-Holydays" obligation. He says that the only ones who can't work on these days are the farmers. For those who have shops in town it is a big day, since so many people go to town on that day. My husband says that when they close their shops on holydays then he won't work either; but he thinks the farmer's work is just as important as theirs — especially, of Saints' Day when he had a lot of corn to pick and it was a big day. He picked.

A. I cannot agree with your husband's rationalization, but I will admit that the problem is confusing, and he is apparently honest about it. So maybe it is better not to argue with him. You tell me that he never works on Sunday; so he is already doing better than some Catholic farmers I know.

Those holydays which are not holidays present Catholics with a problem: business goes on as usual in most stores, shops, offices and factories. If you have a job in one of those you are expected to work as usual, and ward K. Ball, a scholarly and devoted priest.

"Directing his appeal to our intellects, Monsignor laid before us Christ's words to His Apostles: 'Go, therefore, and make disciples of all nations.'

"Here was the answer to the question, 'Did Christ found a particular Church?' for which we had been searching for years. These words are the most important in all Scripture for every truth seeker.

"What more could anyone ask? To believe Christ, one must believe He founded the Catholic Church and clothed her with His authority to teach."

Father O'Brien will be glad to have converts send their names and addresses to him at Notre Dame University, Notre Dame, Indiana, so he may write their conversion stories.

if you own such place of business the force of competition weighs heavily on you. Generally speaking, established custom, recognized by the Church, permits business to go on at its normal pace on those holydays: there are usually four of them each year, with a good chance that one of them will fall on Sunday.

However, I do not believe that the same excusing custom applies to the farmer. He really should do only that work which is soundly necessary, following the same norms as for work on Sunday. The opposite was true, in former years, on the feast of the Assumption. It was threshing time, and all the farmers in the neighborhood exchanged work. The majority were Protestants, and they naturally expected their Catholic neighbors to form part of the threshing crew on that day. If there still exist similar cooperative projects among farmers, then I think they would be excused today. But I cannot see that an individual, operating independently should be exempt from the law, unless there is reasonable necessity. It is not discrimination against the farmer; just recognition of his relative independence — even in these days of his multiple ties with the "welfare state."

Most 'Adult' Movie Viewers Are Youths

By WILLIAM H. MOORING

"Adult appeal" is said to be the prime movie demand of the day, although 65 per cent of the average audience is made up of adolescents. Some of these youngsters are adult in outlook, but those who go to the movies looking for dirt give no proof of it.

What does the Hollywood writer think of when his producer orders "adult appeal?" Many recent screenplays that might have been ideal for the teen trade, as well as appealing to their elders, have become "for adults only," often because of stupid interjections of exaggerations the Hollywood writers have offered as evidence of their artistic maturity.

Something of the kind occurred in "Splendor in the Grass," "Where the Boys Are," "Love in a Goldfish Bowl," "Look in Any Window," "Parrish," "Wild in the Country" and many other shows that were cast primarily to attract youths. Each time prurient youth was exploited in a so-called "mature" theme the discriminating adult might find mad rather than mature.

LOSS OF APPEAL

Now we are to get, from MGM, an unusually appealing story of youthful romance, taken from Elizabeth Spencer's novel, "Light in the Piazza." Yvette Mimieux and George Hamilton are good as the young couple.

There is a deep, human problem that calls for parental solution. Still, as an unnecessary, even unconvincing digression, the girl's mother and the boy's father, excellently played by Olivia de Havilland and Rossano Brazzi, have to indulge in some kind of sly, romantic aside. What is so "adult" about that?

Without lending any "maturity" to the theme (in fact it does the opposite) this and other brief digressions place "Light in the Piazza" on the Legion's adult list, when it might have been an inspiring, delightful, refreshing show for everybody.

A popular, official gesture to youthful acumen, takes George Stevens Jr., from his father's side as associate producer of "The Greatest Story Ever Told", to the U. S. Information Agency, as head of its film division.

Young Stevens is well trained in movies and TV. He is more familiar than many with the baffling thought patterns of the Hollywood big-wigs.

He should be able to help Edward R. Murrow to become more specific about "the American image" which the USIA would have the Hollywood movies spread abroad.

However, the Hollywood film producers must experience new vision. Our films cannot, with any consistency, convey

Matrimony Explained On 'That I May See'

The Sacrament of Matrimony will be explained by Father David J. Heffernan on the diocesan television program "That I May See," on Sunday, Jan. 21, at 11 a.m. over station WCKT, channel 7, Miami.

Mass For Shut-Ins On TV Ch. 10 Sunday

Msgr. James F. Enright, pastor of St. Rose of Lima Church, Miami Shores, will be celebrant of the diocesan television Mass for Shut-ins on Sunday, Jan. 21, at 11:30 a.m. on station WLBW-TV, channel 10, Miami.

honest impressions of American life until our movie makers become as enthusiastic about dramatizing our good side as they have been about our bad one.

Popular Hollywood equations of film art with moral degradation; of licentiousness with freedom; of decency with dramatic dullness and viciousness with dramatic vigor, have to go.

Instead, Hollywood drama, must grant a rightful place to our national ideals and the firm resolve of the great American majority that these are worth every struggle and sacrifice it takes to preserve them.

My mail warns me that when I speak before the 16th Annual Wisconsin Catholic Action Convention, in Milwaukee on Feb. 3, the same students who voted to invite me are going to put me on the hot spot.

FOR THE MONTHS OF JANUARY through DECEMBER

SUN	FRI	FRI	THU	WED	TUE	SAT
8	7	6	5	4	3	2
16	15	14	13	12	11	9

THE NEW CALENDAR EXPLAINED

- Since most jobs are RUSH and they should have been done "yesterday", this calendar enables you to start a job on 7th and have it finished by the 5th! Complaints about orders not getting out on time will NOW be eliminated.
- Since Friday is the end of the normal work week, it is the most popular day among the working class. This calendar provides two Fridays at the BEGINNING of every week.
- There will be no "first-of-the-month" bills to be paid. There isn't any "first" on the calendar. The tenth of the month has also been omitted in case you have been asked to pay on that date.
- Since Mondays are usually very non-productive - nobody likes to work on Monday - this non-productive day has also been eliminated.
- Every month is EXACTLY the same. There will be only two holidays during the entire year; however these same two holidays come every month - they are the Fourth of July and Christmas. Just think what a tremendous boost this will give to the fire-works and toy industries!

When This New Calendar Goes Into Effect, The Demand For 'VOICE' Classified Ads WILL BE GREATER THAN EVER!

"ADVERSITY INTRODUCES A MAN TO HIMSELF . . . ."

Strangely enough, it is under adverse conditions that the average person is offered a close view of the mettle in his makeup. Usually under less-than-ideal conditions, most people have the qualities necessary to solve their problems in acceptable and workmanlike fashion. Suspected and even unknown abilities are manifested when needed most.

All introductions to one's inner self aren't quite as surprisingly pleasant, however. There are certain to be instances where the individual finds that in one respect or another he can't quite measure up to the needs of the moment.

In no respect, however, are services conducted by G. D. PEDEN FUNERAL HOME lacking in attention to the comfort of the bereaved. Attention to many extra details are to be expected at G. D. PEDEN FUNERAL HOME, Catholic Funeral Home, 8231 Bird Rd., where services are complete in every respect. Ambulance service. Phone CA 6-1811.
