

Prayer To Holy Spirit For Ecumenical Council

The Most Reverend Bishop has directed that the following prayer to the Holy Spirit be recited after every low Mass in the Diocese on Sundays as well as weekdays for the success of the forthcoming Vatican Council II.

This directive becomes effective on Feb. 18, 1962, and remains in effect until further notice.

The Very Reverend Monsignor Robert W. Schiefen, J. C. L.
Chancellor

"O Holy Spirit, Creator, mercifully assist Thy Catholic Church, and by Thy heavenly power strengthen and establish her against the assaults of all her enemies; and by Thy love and grace renew the spirit of Thy Servants whom Thou has anointed, that in Thee they may glorify the Father and His only-begotten Son, Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen."

Youth Joins In Supporting Development Fund Drive

Young people of South Florida are giving their active support to the 1962 Development Fund Campaign of the Diocese of Miami.

Revealing their appreciation of the fact that this year's drive is being conducted primarily for the benefit of youth, thousands of boys and girls in the eighth to twelfth grades of the parochial schools have been taking part in the contest to produce an official poster for the campaign.

After they had been judged at the school level, nearly 100 of those considered best were sent to the Development Fund office in the Chancery Building this week. There they are being viewed once more by judges who will select the three prize-winning entries of the entire Diocese.

Announcement of the winners will be made next week. First prize will be a $50 government bond; second prize a $25 government bond and third prize $10 cash.

Meanwhile, the campaign itself is moving along at a rapid rate toward the climax of the drive on March 4, which has been designated as "Stay at Home Sunday." On that date, every family will be asked to welcome to their homes the volunteer workers who will call between the hours of 1 p.m. and 5 p.m.

With the new St. Joseph's Hospital in Port Charlotte rapidly nearing completion, final arrangements were made this week for the opening at an early date of the first Catholic hospital on the west coast of the Diocese of Miami.

Bishop Coleman F. Carroll announced that the Felician Sisters — the Congregation of Sisters of St. Felix — had accepted his invitation to staff and to operate the hospital. Three of the Sisters from the provincial motherhouse at Our Lady of the Sacred Heart Convent in Coraopolis, Pa., a suburb of Pittsburgh, are arriving in Miami today and after conferring with Bishop Carroll will leave immediately to begin their work in Port Charlotte.

Father Lamar J. Genovar, the Bishop's representative for hospitals, stated that with the Sisters on the scene, it was expected that St. Joseph's Hospital would be dedicated and formally opened early in May.

The Sisters will start interviewing doctors, nurses and other professional workers who will join the staff of the hospital and arrange for the purchase and installation of the most modern equipment. Father Genovar will go to Port Charlotte in the next two weeks to confer with civic leaders there regarding the community campaign to raise funds to help defray the cost of the equipment and furnishings.

Built by the Diocese of Miami at a cost in excess of a million dollars, St. Joseph's Hospital initially will provide accommodations for about 65 patients, with arrangements for later expansion to take care of 100 patients.

It will include a complete out-patient department, as well as obstetrical, surgical, medical and self-care units,

Offer Breviary For Council, Pope Tells Clergy Of World

VATICAN CITY (NC) — Pope John XXIII has asked all priests of the world to join him in dedicating their daily recitation of the breviary for the success of the coming ecumenical council.

He made the request in an apostolic letter "To All Clergy."

Pope John said: "The chief form of cooperation for the success of the council that we expect is prayer, and priestly prayer above all, which immediately gives tone and fervor to the spiritual elevation of all Christian people."

He noted how the liturgical commemoration of the visit of the Magi to Christ came early in the new year. He said it would be fitting at the outset of the year that the clergy of the world, in a similar spirit of adoration and offering, should make an intense preparation for the council.

"ADMIRABLE REMINDER"

He included in his invitation "all those who belong to the priestly order of all countries, of every language . . . under the vaults of every church or chapel or gathered together in choir . . . from the young sub-deacon who has just begun to taste the fervor and tenderness of the recitation of the Divine Office . . . to the venerable old man who finds gentle repose in his prayer."

The Pope went on to make observations on the breviary itself. He called it an "admirable reminder" of the four marks of the Church — one, holy, catholic and apostolic — and "the great divine poem offered by Jesus Christ as the song of redeemed mankind."

The Pontiff gave evidence of his desire for Christian unity when he expressed his "intense longing that the different Christian confessions, which through the centuries of history have lived and still live separated (from the Church), should be reunited with her and enjoy the same benefits" as are found in the breviary.

He continued: "The breviary is not only a poem of joy for the mind and a daily rule of life, it is a relief and comfort amidst the difficulties and weariness of human vicissitudes."

He described the content of the breviary as a masterful blending of the Psalms with the other parts of the Old Testament and with the New Testament.

"It is from this," he said, "that our Second Vatican Ecumenical Council is already drawing substantial elements of most pure doctrine and wise provisions of ecclesiastical discipline."

He declared: "One may well say that we feel ourselves at the onset of a new epoch, which is based upon loyalty to the ancient heritage yet which is open to the marvels of true spiritual progress. This new epoch can expect dignity, prosperity and blessing only from Christ, the glorious and immortal King of centuries and of peoples."

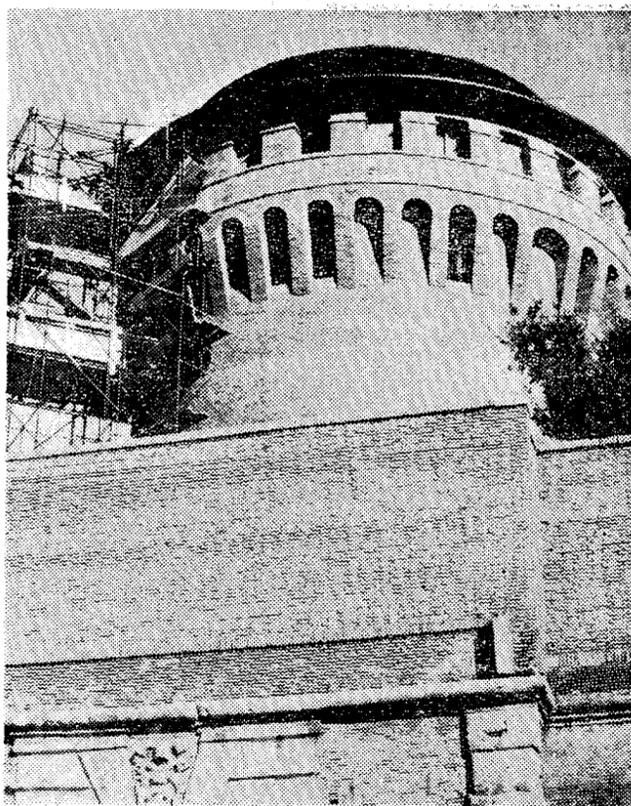

THREEFOLD HOMAGE

He returned to the mystery of the visit of the Magi and the symbolism of their gifts: gold for charity, incense for prayer and myrrh for mortification. He added: "The priest's dedication of the recitation of the breviary for the council could not be better expressed than by this threefold homage."

Pope John suggested that, before reciting the breviary, priests should pause a moment to formulate their intention of dedicating their prayers for the success of the council.

He further suggested that they ask their individual angels to assist them in reciting the breviary attentively and devoutly.

He concluded with the assurance that "the humble Pastor of the universal Church considers himself united with all his priests on land and sea. The Pope always dedicates the earliest hours of the morning to the peaceful recitation of his breviary which, intended as a prayerful introduction to his various expressions, can truly be called the breviary of the universal Church."

Holland To Pay A Fourth Of Church-Building Costs

THE HAGUE (NC) — The Dutch government will begin granting a 25 per cent subsidy for church construction costs on March 1, Minister of Construction and Housing Johannes van Aartsen announced.

He said that by 1970 the country will need 170 new Catholic churches, 160 for the Netherlands Reformed Church, and 149 for other religious denominations. Catholic sources have estimated that it will cost $33,120,000 to build 170 new Catholic churches.

Use of public funds to help finance church-building is widespread on the provincial and local levels, but this is the national government's first such aid in modern times.

For over a century, however, the nation has paid salaries of clergymen of all denominations. It has aided denominational schools for more than 70 years. All denominational elementary and secondary schools now have all construction and maintenance costs and teachers' salaries paid by the State.

A total of 430 Catholic parish churches, costing $83.8 million, have been built in the Netherlands since World War II. Special annual collections for church construction have raised over $7.7 million in the past four years.

Definition Of Non-Catholics In Mystical Body Expected

HEIDELBERG, Germany (NC) — The head of the Holy See's Secretariat for Promoting Christian Unity said here it is very important that the coming ecumenical council give a basic explanation of the position of non-Catholic Christians within the Mystical Body of Christ.

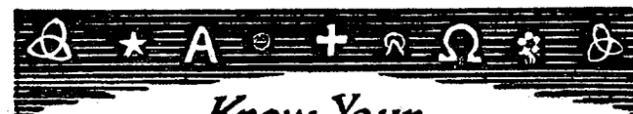

Augustin Cardinal Bea, addressing a gathering of Protestant and Catholic students and university professors here, said that the nature of the one true Church of Christ should be spelled out by the council.

The council must make clear the indelible effect of every valid baptism, he said, as all who are baptized are incorporated in Christ and made Children of God. Such a declaration would serve to teach that all other Christian brothers and sisters are members of the one great family of Christ, he said.

Cardinal Bea said that the council must show its sincerity by dealing squarely with those problems which divide Christians. There should be no room for doubt as to the fact that the Roman Catholic Church cannot withdraw defined dogmas he said.

"The Lord entrusted the Church with the preservation and interpretation of the truths of the Faith," the Cardinal said, "but He did not give her power to change truth." The German-born Prince of the Church added that in maintaining this dogmatic deposit of the Faith, bridges to Christian unity are not destroyed.

Christian Symbols

IC XC NIKA

"Jesus Christ Conquers" is the translation of this ancient Byzantine inscription. "IC" and "XC" are abbreviations formed from the first and last letters of the Greek words, "IHCOYC XPICTOC" (Jesus Christ), and "NIKA" is the contracted form of the Greek Verb for "conquers." (The "C" in the abbreviations is an old form of "S" or "Sigma.")

The symbol, including the Greek cross, is stamped on the altar loaves consecrated in the Byzantine Rite and Orthodox liturgies. According to tradition, this use dates back to the time of Constantine the Great, fourth century Roman empire. Constantine is said to have seen a vision of the cross with the words, "In this sign conquer."

The symbol also is related to another fourth century emperor, Julian the Apostate, who endeavored to force the empire back to adoration of its pagan deities. He failed, and his dying words were supposed to have been: "Thou hast conquered, O Galilean." Whatever its origin, the symbol signifies the truth that Christ conquers, or prevails over, sin and Satan.

The abbreviation "IC XC" frequently appears on Byzantine icons to identify figures of Christ. The Christ Child is so identified in the popular picture of Our Lady of Perpetual Help.

Polish Primate Due In Rome On First Visit Since 1958

ROME (NC) — Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski, Primate of Poland, was expected to arrive here Feb. 16 to take part in the fourth plenary session of the Central Preparatory Commission for the Second Vatican Council.

Polish sources here said he was leaving Warsaw by train. His last visit to the West was in the fall of 1958, when he came to Rome to participate in the conclave that resulted in the election of Pope John XXIII. Thus this will be his first appearance here at a meeting connected with the ecumenical council.

The Cardinal Archbishop of Gniezno and Warsaw is reported to plan to remain in Rome for six weeks, returning to Poland at the end of March.

During his stay, it was understood, he intends to schedule a meeting with the Archbishop of Philadelphia for the Ukrainians, Archbishop Ambrose Senyshyn, O.S.B.M. Purpose is to map out a program of celebrations in the United States marking the 1,000th anniversary of the conversion of Poland to the Catholic Faith.

In preparation for this event in 1966, Cardinal Wyszynski instituted in 1957 — following an audience during which Pope Pius XII blessed an image of Poland's national patron, Our Lady of Czestochowa — a nine-year program of spiritual preparation.

FIRST FOUNDATION of the internationally known Religious of the Sacred Heart has opened here at 3747 Main Highway. Mother McDonnell, headmistress, is shown instructing members of the fourth grade class following the formal inauguration of classes last week.

GIRLS' SCHOOL IN COCONUT GROVE

Convent Of Sacred Heart Opens

The Religious of the Sacred Heart who conduct educational institutions in 34 countries on five continents have inaugurated classes in their first Florida foundation.

El Jardin estate at 3747 Main Highway, Coconut Grove is the site of the newly established Convent of the Sacred Heart, Carrollton, an elementary and college preparatory school for girls.

Classes began following celebration of Mass by Msgr. William F. McKeever, Miami diocesan superintendent of schools. Grades one through 12 are included.

According to Mother Katherine McDonnell, headmistress at the school, the Miami Sacred Heart Convent will follow the same inspiring program as other Sacred Heart Institutions established by the foundress, Saint Madeleine Sophie at the turn of the 19th century. She emphasized "an education serious in its principles, strong in its studies and rich in a spirit of love and life."

The required subjects taught aim above all at forming the ability to think for one's self. The study program will prepare students for the college entrance examination board tests. The core curriculum is based on a correlated course in philosophy, literature and history.

The elements of logic in the sophomore year and the elements of rational psychology in junior and senior years have been an integral part of the society's plan for more than 150 years. The study has proved of marked practical help in the development of correct thinking so necessary in a world of changing values.

Language will be stressed with instructions in Latin, Spanish and French taught according to recently developed methods. A monthly literary assembly will give creative upper classmen a willing audience for their writing.

Entrance examinations for admission in September of this year will be given in April, Mother McDonnell said.

FRESH AIR classrooms are also provided as students enjoy the sunshine on the beautiful patio of the Convent which overlooks Biscayne Bay in Coconut Grove. Mother Guerrieri is shown instructing the sophomore class in American history.

New Hospital To Open Soon; Felician Sisters In Charge

(Continued from Page 1) designed to give medical and surgical care to all residents within a 20-mile radius. It will be completely air-conditioned. The architects are Alfred G. Reid Associates, of Pittsburgh.

Arrangements for the Felician Sisters to take charge of the hospital were made following an inspection trip to Port Charlotte by Sister Mary Albina, C.S.S.F., vicar provincial; Sister Mary Dolores, C.S.S.F., a registered nurse, and Sister Mary Eugenia, superior of Felician schools.

Assigned to the hospital and arriving here today are Sisters Mary Virginia, C.S.S.F., Sister Mary DeSales, C.S.S.F., and Sister Mary Lillian, C.S.S.F.

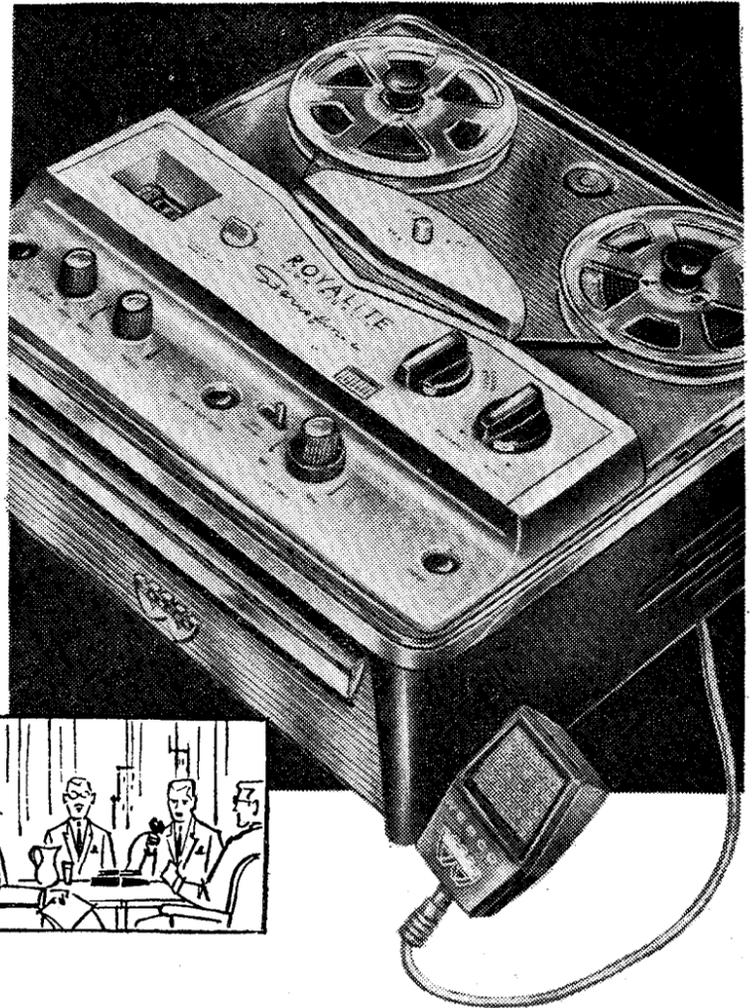

The Sisters of the Congregation of St. Felix have been noted for nearly 400 years for their work as nurses, teachers, the care of the aged, their work in orphanages and for mentally retarded children. The congregation was founded by St. Felix, of Cantalica, Italy, a Capuchin Brother of the 16th Century.

The Felicians' activities are carried on in 25 nations. There are 4,000 Felicians in their seven provinces in the United States alone. Their generalate is in Rome and they are represented in Poland, Canada, Brazil and other nations.

They are connected with hospitals in Oklahoma, Texas, Iowa and Pennsylvania. In addition, they conduct 12 schools in the Diocese of Pittsburgh; two in the Cleveland Archdiocese; four in the Greensburg Diocese; four in the Steubenville Diocese; one in the Wheeling Diocese; three in the Harrisburg Diocese; one in the Altoona-Johnstown Diocese, and two in the Erie Diocese.

Malta Bishops Cite Example Of Cuba As Election Nears

VALLETTA, Malta (NC) — Malta's Bishops have warned Catholics against voting in upcoming elections for Malta's anticlerical Labor party, and pointed to Cuba as an example of what could happen here if their warning goes unheeded.

persons of anti-Catholic, anti-clerical and socialist principles, persons who have shown in their electoral platform that they intend, if in power, to oppose the laws of the Church and her principles?" asked Archbishop Michael Gozo and Bishop Joseph Pace of Gozo, the adjoining island.

"Make sure that what happened to the Catholics of Cuba does not happen here," they said.

The general elections are the first after four years of direct British rule. Britain suspended the constitution in 1958 pending the drafting of a new constitution. The elections will give Malta a parliament and its own internal government under the new constitution.

Nehru Chides India Bishops For Anti-Communist Pastoral

ERNAKULAM, India (NC) — Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru has criticized the Bishops of Kerala state for urging Catholics to vote against communists in the nation's coming parliamentary elections.

He said a recent pastoral letter on the subject was "dangerously near to religion officially interfering with the process of voting."

The Prime Minister did not mention Kerala's Catholic Hierarchy by name but his words left no doubt he was referring to them. He spoke here at election rallies for his Congress party.

The Prime Minister emphasized his own anticommunist principles and said the letter probably was written with good intentions.

RED PROTESTS
 Communist leader Bhupesh Gupta said in Hyderabad he had sent Nehru a telegram of protest against the Kerala Bishops' pastoral.

He called the pastoral "clear disregard for the constitution and defiance of its basic tenets and the principles of secularism."

The Kerala Times pointed out that Nehru had in the past defended the right of the Hierarchy to prohibit Catholics from voting for communists. The Ernakulam newspaper said the Kerala High Court and other official bodies had recognized the right of pastors to issue such directives.

The Bishops' joint pastoral reminded Catholics: "It is our sacred duty to oppose communism, which was harmful to the progress and welfare of the country and its people."

Communists ruled Kerala from April of 1957 to July of 1959, when the central government of the Indian Union turned them out of office on charges of misrule. A special election two years ago put the present coalition government in power for five years, which means that Kerala will vote only for delegates to the Union Parliament in the coming elections.

The pastoral said communists "are working their way up increasingly to regain their lost influence and popular support."

The Bishops declared: "We should not give any quarter to the dangerous Reds, who thrust the state to the verge of ruin in 28 months of rule."

London Chapel Opened

LONDON (NC) — A new example of Catholic church art, the completely mosaic-covered Blessed Sacrament chapel in London's Westminster cathedral, has been opened to the public for the first time.

The chapel will remain on view for two weeks before reverting to its liturgical purpose as the permanent repository of the Blessed Sacrament. It will then be visible to the public only through the fronting grill.

Birth Debate Brings Flood Of Calls To Radio Station

ST. LOUIS (NC) — A broadcast debate between a priest and a Planned Parenthood Association official over the morality of artificial birth control flooded a radio station here with telephone calls.

The Rev. Mr. W. Murray Kenney, former president and now director of the Planned Parenthood Association of St. Louis, debated the issue with Father Joseph W. McNicholas, assistant director of St. Louis Catholic Charities. The Rev. Mr. Kennedy is rector of St. Mark's Episcopal church here.

After opening statements by both participants and brief rebuttals, the remainder of the two-hour show as devoted to answering questions phoned in by listeners. Three out of every four questions were directed to Father McNicholas.

Robert Hyland, president of KMOX Radio, decided to double the length of the program after calls completely jammed the switchboard during the first hour of the show. Both participants were willing.

"The primary purpose and basic qualities of marriage come from God — not from a pope or bishop or the State of Missouri," Father McNicholas said.

The Rev. Mr. Kenney held that there had been a "population explosion" which posed a serious threat for mankind's survival.

The priest disagreed. He cited U. S. Census Bureau estimates which showed that even if the country's population increased to 400 million in the next half century, the population density would still be only 100 persons per square mile — approximately that of the State of Virginia today.

"I think we're pushing the panic button when we talk about population explosion," Father McNicholas said.

Youth Holds Key To Survival In Cold War, General Says

CHICAGO (NC)— If the leaders of the future develop more individual responsibility and learn more about the world's problems, America will survive the cold war, Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther said here.

The president of the American Red Cross addressed 427 graduates of Loyola University here. He was awarded an honorary doctorate of laws. He urged the graduates "to continue to bear in mind that under our concept of the sovereignty of the soul, you must have individual responsibility."

The former NATO commander said he believes the cold war is going to continue without a hot war, but warned "we are in a conflict in which there is no prize for second place." He said the conflict is between two systems — one based on the idea that man has a sovereign soul and government gets its powers from the consent of the governed, the other that man pay obeisance to the government.

The 1956 Laetare Medalist said: "Our efforts to convince our partners in freedom that we are interested in their welfare has been a faltering one. We have to realize that the communists have done a very good job of indoctrinating their youth through a series of organizations from age seven culminating in the final badge of merit-membership in the Communist party."

The General said "there is no question in my mind as to our survival if our youth develop more individual responsibility and broaden their horizons to include people around the world."

High Court To Rule On Tax Exemptions Given Churches

WASHINGTON (NC) — Tax exemptions granted church property have been challenged before the U. S. Supreme Court.

The General Finance Corporation, a Rhode Island firm, concedes in its petition to the high court that such exemptions are "universal" but argues that they violate separation of Church and State.

A tax exemption for church property is "an outright grant by another name" and hence unconstitutional, the General Finance Corporation declares.

The controversy began in 1959, when the General Finance Corporation was assessed a tax of $842 on property it owns in Cranston, R. I.

The company took legal action in an effort to have its tax reduced by $30.42. It argued that its tax would have been that much lower if exemptions had not been granted to certain organizations and individuals.

The exemptions challenged by the company are those granted under Rhode Island law to church property used for religious purposes.

The Lord's Day Has Become Dollar Day In Some Cities

The Lord's Day has become Dollar Day in a number of cities in South Florida. The enormous amount of unnecessary business being conducted on Sundays continues to let loose a flood of complaints. Department stores in shopping centers, supermarkets, shoe and tire stores, used car lots, etc., have continued at a merry pace to tear down the age-old reverence for Sunday as a day of rest.

Let's be honest about this and admit two things. First, there is no need whatever for these places of business to be operating on Sunday. Nowadays most people are working five days a week, which means plenty of time to shop. Nearly everyone has a refrigerator or deep freeze for storing, which means fewer trips to stores. The occasional emergency need does not require the business section of town to open up hopefully.

Secondly, let's admit that it is not fair to blame only the owner. Surely he is out after money, regardless of the day. He is indeed guilty, but not as guilty as we are, if we have shopped on Sundays. If he has no customers, he will lock his door and go home and be comfortable, confident that the neighboring store is also closed for the same reason. If he stays open it is because people thrust money on him.

What people? Are these atheists, agnostics, the irreligious who want to show their contempt for the Lord's day? Not at all. People have been seen leaving Church and heading immediately for a big bargain store, probably with the mistaken notion that since they have done their duty to God, now the rest of the day can be used as they please.

The Third Commandment requires us to keep holy the Lord's Day. Canon Law forbids "public buying and selling on Sunday." We have an obligation to give good example and show reverence for this holy day. Moreover if we shop, we encourage other stores to open in competition; we force people to work and disrupt their Sunday observance we are helping in a positive way to advance the spirit of secularism.

We don't want blue laws. No law really solves this problem. The solution is found in your attitude and in ours — in our common refusal to shop. If enough take a firm stand, store doors will be locked, and Sunday will look and sound again like the Lord's day in the business section.

More Nuns Urgently Needed

A few years ago an article on vocations to the Religious Life came up with the startling statistics that one out of every 100 Catholic women is a Catholic Sister; and one out of every 500 American women is a Catholic Sister. Put this way, the number sounds tremendous, large enough perhaps to encourage the unknowing to believe that our schools and hospitals and institutions must be so crowded with Sisters that our facilities can be expanded for a long time to come.

How we wish it were so! Nearly 200,000 Sisters is a mighty impressive figure, until we start dividing the religious among all the institutions sponsored by the Church. Then sadly we realize that we need more than one out of every 100 Catholic women. We need three or four or more for the enormous job waiting to be done.

Last Saturday the Sisters of St. Joseph received 11 young ladies into the novitiate at Jensen Beach. This is very good, but again it is not what these zealous Sisters need in the way of recruits to take care of their many missions in Florida.

We hope that our Catholic parents join with us in fervently praying that far more than one out of every 100 Catholic graduates from our local high schools this June will choose the greatest career of all and dedicate their lives to Christ in the service of the Church as Catholic Sisters.

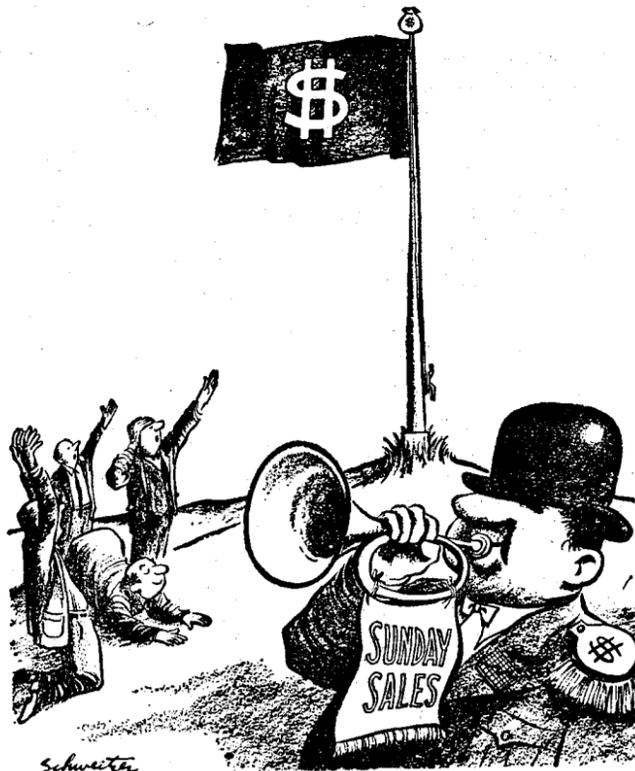

The Case Of Gary Powers

The case of Francis Gary Powers has set off endless arguments and discussions. One of the many unanswered questions has to do with the Russian charge that the American spy had in his possession a suicide kit, presumably to be used in case he was in danger of being captured. It has never been confirmed that Powers had been equipped with a death needle or suicide pill or a "self-destruct" mechanism in his plane. But speculation over his mysterious actions and words has dealt with the matter as if it were a fact, and people are asking why he did not carry out "his optional choice" of suicide.

This raises the extremely important point of morality involved in such a situation. Would a spy be justified in taking his own life in order to avoid capture? Has the government the authority to command a soldier or a spy to destroy himself or even to equip him with the means of suicide?

The answer is no in both instances. There is a principle of the natural law that forbids a human being directly to take his own life, no matter what the circumstances. Human life depends on God for its beginning, its preservation and its end. He alone is the Master over life and death. Direct suicide, then, that is, the deliberate choice to end one's life, is always morally wrong, regardless of the good hoped for. The end does not justify the means.

By the same token, the government does not have the authority to command a person directly to destroy himself for military reasons. It has no such right over an innocent citizen. Indirectly it may indeed command death, as when a pilot is ordered to take on a mission in which he is likely to be killed. But never directly may the state compel a person to destroy himself.

Schweitzer
"I PLEDGE ALLEGIANCE TO OUR FLAG"

We can see hovering in the background of this question a much larger problem. If the state did have the authority to order suicide, think of the dangerous consequences this could lead to. How easy for the state in other circumstances and under less conscientious leadership to extend this control over life and death.

Suicide is consistent with communist disregard of morality. Our hope of victory over the Reds lies in upholding and living up to Christian standards of morality.

How To Place Burse Fund In Your Will As A Memorial

Inquirers who are interested in helping the seminary program of the Diocese of Miami constantly ask how they are supposed to remember this work in their will. They realize that they could leave no finer memorial than to help finance the training of a young man to the priesthood. But they often are unaware of how to proceed in this worthy endeavor.

The logical answer is to provide in your will for the Burse Fund of the Diocese. A Burse is a sum of money, $20,000, which is attained from large and small donations. Each Burse is invested so that its annual income will help provide for the training expenses of a seminarian each year. Once a particular candidate is ordained, the income is then applied to another until ultimately the original Burse is responsible for helping many seminarians to the priesthood.

There are a variety of ways in which you can provide for the naming of a Burse. You can request that it be named for you, as The Mary Brown Burse, or it can be named for some loved one, or even for a particular saint. Some parishioners wish, on the other hand, to help finish the payments on the Burse which each parish has in the name of the parish.

Finally there are those who wish their donation to remain anonymous or to be added to some Burse already established.

Donations from $1 up to many thousands of dollars are needed to help in the training of the more than 160 seminarians now at the minor seminary of the Diocese of Miami.

Pope Pius XII made it clear that anyone who helps even one candidate to the priesthood has a share in all the future Masses and good works which will be his. This is why zealous Catholics make sure to remember the Burse Fund in their will — so that there will always be at least one priest to pray continually for the happy repose of their soul.

If you inform the Burse Office now of how you intend to remember the Burse Fund in your will, you can be associated immediately with those benefactors of the seminary who are remembered each day at the Masses and prayers of the seminarians now studying at St. John Vianney minor seminary in Miami.

In making out your will, use the following wording: "I hereby give, devise, and bequeath to The Most Reverend Coleman F. Carroll, as Bishop of Miami, a corporation sole, the sum of . . . for the Burse Fund of the Diocese of Miami."

Be sure to inform the Burse Office of your action in this regard so that you can benefit immediately from the prayers of the seminarians.

Danes Fear A Trojan Horse In Europe's Common Market

By FATHER JOHN B. SHEERIN

"Something is rotten in the state of Denmark" according to "Hamlet." There are Danes today who claim there is something offensive and dangerous in the European Common Market. That something is Roman Catholic influence. Now that Denmark has applied for admission to the six-nation combine, a debate is going on in that country regarding the "Catholic peril" that membership in the Common Market might bring to Denmark.

It is true that here is a Roman Catholic predominance in several of the nations in the Common Market. But one Danish paper points out that the Danish opposition comes not from Protestant churchmen, for the most part, but from political Leftists.

THE REAL DANGER

The editor says that fear of the Roman Catholic Church's influence would be a healthy reaction to the Common Market if the fear stemmed from a desire to safeguard the Gospel values of the Reformation. Instead, according to the editor, it derives from a fear that political Leftists in Denmark might lose out if Catholic influence were to enter Denmark through the Common Market.

His conclusion was that the "Catholic danger" was highly exaggerated and that Denmark should abandon any thought of "isolationism." He saw Danish membership in the great European alliance as a challenge to Danish cultural life but not a threat. "Do not let us be hypnotized by Rome . . . but let us try, undismayed, to make ourselves felt within the European fellowship which is the text of the day and a must of our time."

Earlier in December, the Danish ambassador in Paris, Eyvind Bartels, delivered an address in Copenhagen to a group of students. He discussed the "Catholic danger" in the Common Market. Admitting that there was much talk about it in Denmark, he said the danger was overrated.

'REAL DANGER'

The Danish diplomat claimed that the real danger was not Roman Catholicism but . . . He bluntly asserted that "the religious problem in Denmark is not one of Protestantism versus Roman Catholicism but rather that the Danes are atheists."

Bartels raised the question as to the cause of this prevalence of atheism and suggested that perhaps the Reformation was not such a happy liberation after all. It induced a liberation from the Church but asked for a direct contact with Christ. But Bartels said that the fact is that few are capable — as Luther was — of grasping the idea of God directly through Christ.

Another voice in the debate on the "Catholic danger" was that of Rev. Carl Hermansen, former Minister of Church Affairs in Denmark. In the Vendsyssel Tidende, he said: "It is of course possible that Roman Catholic efforts will be intensified (after Danish entrance into the Common Market) but honestly, would that be so terrible?"

"Suppose that the 30,000 Roman Catholics became 300,000 under the impact of our joining the Common Market, i.e. a minority Church which we would come up against time after time and must reckon and compete with. Might this not be a healthy cure?"

" . . . Might not the opening of the frontiers pave the way for intercourse across the boundaries, even the confessional boundaries — might it not be possible for us to learn something from them and they from us? At any rate, it is a poor argument that by opening the frontiers we open the doors to the big, bad wolf in Rome to come and eat us."

A Matter Of Conscience

By FR. JAMES J. WALSH

Now and then we get letters or calls from indignant non-Catholics who are convinced we are unreasonable and intolerant on at least two counts.

First, they want an explanation of why a double ceremony in a mixed marriage is not permissible, that is, one in the Catholic and the other in the Protestant Church.

Father Walsh

Secondly, they ask why we welcome Protestants to our church services while Catholics are not allowed to worship in a non-Catholic church.

On the face of it, their charge that we are unreasonable sounds reasonable enough. In both of these instances we appear to be far more demanding and perhaps much less charitable than our non-Catholic friends.

The average non-Catholic, when asked to attend Mass, offers no serious objection. He considers himself broadminded about the matter. And if informed that a Catholic must be married in the presence of a Catholic priest in the Catholic Church, as a rule he is willing to cooperate.

Why then are we so uncooperative? Or are we really? Let me say that in all fairness to our Protestant friends we cannot blame them for thinking us narrowminded in these matters. We do not expect them to understand our attitude, unless they look for an answer in the fact that every person is bound in conscience to follow his principles.

Take the matter of worshipping God on Sunday. A Catholic has a deep-rooted conviction about the place of the Mass in his worship of God. From childhood on, even when so small he may restlessly squirm in the pew and disturb others, there is gradually built up in him a profound reverence for the Mass and a solid sense of obligation to attend. The Mass and Sunday for him become synonymous. He cannot think of the one without associating it with the other.

This attitude flows out of his conviction that Christ gave us the Mass as the necessary means of worshiping God on the Lord's Day, just as He used Calvary as the means of redeeming mankind. Therefore, no matter how excellent group prayers may be on a Sunday, however uplifting congregational singing or the well prepared sermon of a preacher, these tributes to God, all of which may be good in themselves, cannot take the place of the Holy Sacrifice for him.

In conscience, therefore, he realizes that he cannot cooperate in a form of worship which was devised by Christians as a substitute for the Mass. And because this is a matter of conscience with him, he expects others to respect his view and to leave him free in the exercise of it.

On the other hand, a Protestant usually believes that the worship found in one church is as pleasing as that of another. He may even believe that he can worship God just as worthily by not going near the church on a Sunday, but instead communing with nature or listening to a symphony. In attending Mass, he violates no conviction of conscience, as a Catholic would in attending Protestant services.

This same principle can be applied to the other question posed, namely, why is a Catholic not allowed to have a double marriage ceremony.

In his religious instructions, the Catholic child learns early that the priesthood and the you try to make of your life a dream-world that knows little of the cross of Christ? Are you so infected by this world's sense of values that you have lost sight of the vision of life given to you by our Blessed Lord?

Father Kilian

The Apostle Paul summed up his set of Christian values in a single sentence: "God forbid that I should glory save in the cross of Our Lord Jesus Christ, through whom the world is crucified to me and I to the world." (Gal. 6:14) St. Paul considered everything this life had to offer as "dung" that he might gain Christ. Christ was his sole treasure and he was willing to pay any price to possess Him.

To glory means to set our hearts upon and fix our sights on the things we think make common goal — our sharing in the vision of God.

1) Do you glory in your friendship with the great of this world? Some set their hearts upon the companionship of great men, or on having entree to the high places in the worlds of business, politics, or society. Yet the Presence we must treasure above all is the Presence of the Blessed Trinity dwelling within us. This was won by the cross of Christ and is increased by our daily carrying of His cross.

2) Others glory in their knowledge. The people and things they know . . . the places they have seen or visited. St. Paul gloried only in the knowledge of Christ crucified. We should treasure the science of the saints as the greatest knowledge of all. This is the most productive of lasting success because it teaches the way that leads to the vision of God in heaven.

3) Many today glory in their freedom. But their twisted definition of liberty means they have the right to do exactly what they desire with their time, their money and their lives. To St. Paul the only slavery was the slavery of sin from which the cross of Christ saved us. True freedom is not found in sinful indulgence or self-assertion but in the faithful following of a pattern of life fashioned by a God of Love.

4) Many today glory in their social standings and this is their greatest treasure. They pride themselves in their entree to where the notables of this life gather. But the social thoughts, or even the pocket-books of others. They are proud people and they love to dominate. St. Paul found the power and wisdom of God in the suffering figure of Christ Crucified. In the contemplation of Christ he found answer to the pride of men and the solution of all of life's problems.

When St. Paul says we must be "dead to this world," he means that its warped sense of values must be no part of our ambitions. Too many today have lost, or are losing Christ because they have fixed their hearts on the "dung" of these times. The cross of Christ, in which Paul gloried, is exactly what is needed by an age characterized by childish self-indulgence and by a slothful escape from work and reality.

Christ must be the treasure of the Christian. Our entire life should be an unending quest for a greater share in the riches of Christ. Our fundamental drive in life should be to seek only what is found in Christ. With and in Him God has given us all good things. But Our Lord is a Crucified Savior and most of His riches are found on a cross. To seek Him alone, therefore, is to glory in the cross of Christ!

A Challenge To North American Catholics

By FR. FREDERICK MCGUIRE
Executive Secretary, Mission Secretariat

Father McGuire is guest columnist for Msgr. George G. Higgins who is attending a meeting in Rome of the preparatory commission on the Lay Apostolate for the forthcoming Ecumenical Council.

Comparatively few of our Catholic people here in the United States are aware of the tremendous changes which have taken place during the last 15 years in the so-called "missionary" areas of the world.

These changes have been both social and economic. The whole structure of society in China, for example, is different today as a result of communist domination. This holds true for North Korea and North Vietnam as well. Under a communist regime the Church is shackled and missionary work is at a standstill. And these countries contain one-fourth the population of the world!

There are other changes, however, which are just as dramatic even though less well known. The colonial powers have relinquished their holdings in Africa and Asia with the result that we have new nations striving mightily for political and economic stability. The people of these nations are now fully aware of the fact that other peoples and other nations have found a way to obtain better food, clothing, housing and education. They want these advantages for themselves and they want them now.

The urban areas, housing the factories beckon to them. The bare subsistence of an outmoded agricultural economy no longer has an appeal. The resultant growth of slums adjacent to the larger cities is a challenge to the government administrator and the sociologist. The social security which was built into the tribe disappears in the city and no good substitute has been found to replace it.

In Latin America, where there is a critical shortage of priests, urbanization is going forward at an alarming rate. There is a high concentration of people in a few cities, usually the national capitals; 33 per cent of the total population of Uruguay lives in Montevideo; 30 per cent of all Argentines live in Buenos Aires; 23 per cent of the people of Chile living in Santiago.

Whatever Church facilities which already exist in Latin American cities will be inadequate in the face of the sheer numbers of baptized Catholics who should be using them. Whatever visible tie with the Church the masses of the people from rural areas may have had is likely to be lost in the city.

This rapidly growing urban proletariat is poor in a way no rural dweller was. The urban migrant has lost his identity, lost the community which kept alive for him his Christian heritage and has broken the tie which united him with the Church in former days, no matter how lax might have been his practice of religion.

The urban proletariat today is likely to be rootless, isolated, without norms, a lost individual without a spiritual home.

The challenge to the North American Catholic is clear. If the Church in any given area suffers, the whole body suffers. The affluence of U. S. Catholics must minister to the needs of the ailing members of the Church overseas.

College Aid Bill Blocked, Goes To Rules Committee

WASHINGTON (NC) — A Minnesota legislator has blocked a House-Senate conference to patch together a compromise between widely varying bills to provide Federal aid for colleges.

Rep. Albert Quie objected to a unanimous consent request made to the House to send its version of the bill into the meeting to produce a compromise.

Quie's objection can be upset only by the House Rules Committee. The committee is not expected to vote on the question before Monday, Feb. 19, because of the 10-day Lincoln Day recess.

Both House and Senate measures propose a five-year program to help finance construction of non-religious academic facilities at all types of colleges. But the methods differ.

The $2.674 billion Senate bill proposes only loans — for 75 per cent of the project's cost. The $1.5 billion House bill combines loans — also for 75 per cent — and grants — for one-third of the project's cost.

In addition, the Senate bill contains President Kennedy's recommendation for a $924 million, 212,500-scholarship program, a feature dropped by leaders in the House.

The Senate version also includes a $250 million program of Federal construction grants for public community colleges.

The House approved its bill by a vote of 319 to 79 and the Senate later adopted its version after lengthy debate on its Church-State connotations and rejection of an amendment to throw all private colleges out of the bill.

FLORIDA VOTES

Both Florida senators — Holland and Smathers — voted against the proposed amendment which would have limited federal loans to public colleges and universities only.

The Church-State issue was raised by Sen. Sam J. Ervin, Jr. of North Carolina. He charged the bill's provision for equal treatment of public and church-related colleges "would mark the first major breakthrough for those religious groups which have been demanding that they be given access to the Federal treasury and permitted to finance their activities with tax money.

He introduced an amendment to bar all private colleges not just church-related ones although they were the prime target — from eligibility for loans.

Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon, floor manager of the bill, countered with an amendment to insert a provision that colleges prove the loans will not be used primarily for religious purposes, a clause already in the House version.

The amendment stipulated funds could not be used for a facility intended as a place of worship nor for a building to be used primarily in connection with any part of the program of a school or department of divinity.

Ervin derided the Morse amendment, whose cosponsor was Sen. Lister Hill of Alabama, chairman of the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee. Ervin called it a "powder puff improvement."

But it was adopted by a voice vote and the Ervin amendment later was rejected by a 72 to 15 roll call vote. The bill itself passed by a 69 to 17 vote.

Morse led the arguments against the Ervin amendment, claiming that the bill's provision of loans only — which must be repaid within 50 years and will cost the government nothing — is constitutional.

He said it is "in no way inconsistent with any decision that the U. S. Supreme Court has rendered."

Morse also noted that 40 per cent of all college students today are in private and church-related institutions. Sixty per cent of the total number of U. S. institutions of higher education are private, he added.

Ervin called the bill "a bald violation of the first amendment."

New Approach Bill Goes To Committee

WASHINGTON (NC) — Rep. Cleveland Bailey announced that the House general education subcommittee will begin hearings on his "new" approach to Federal aid for education which he believes will "cut the heart out of the religious dispute."

The Bailey measure would base Federal grants to states primarily on the amount of money the states are now spending for education. States would get 2 per cent of their educational expenditures.

It also would let the states themselves decide how to spend the Federal money.

Private Teachers Included In 'Educational Quality' Bill

WASHINGTON (NC) — President Kennedy's proposal to improve teaching quality will permit Federal assistance to parochial and other private school teachers.

The proposal was introduced in the Senate on behalf of the administration by Sen. Wayne Morse. The legislation's language drew no distinction between public and private school instructors.

The "educational quality" bill (S. 2826) would set up a $747,800,000, five-year program whose major feature would be Federally sponsored one-year scholarships for full-time study in their fields by outstanding grade and high school teachers. There would be a maximum of 2,500 scholarships a year.

Teachers would be selected by state commissions whose memberships are "broadly representative" of education.

The bill provides that each teacher shall be given a stipend not to exceed $5,000. The college or university the teacher chooses to attend be given a "cost-of-education" allowance of $500.

Meanwhile, Sen. Kenneth Keating said he does not accept as a final decision the Senate's tabling of his proposal to end discriminatory treatment of teachers in a 1958 education aid program.

It would have extended an NDEA provision which permits college students who borrow Federal funds for their education to earn up to 50 per cent forgiveness by becoming full-time teachers.

to think that just because children attend parochial schools that they should be excluded from benefits which other children have or might have."

An official version of his remarks was later issued by the Bureau of Information of the New York Archdiocese.

Cardinal Spellman said that "if the administration bill and the administration's desires should become factual, that means the end of our schools."

Enactment of the administration's bill, he said, "would be a dagger threatening our very existence."

A full burse comes to $20,000, an amount invested to produce an annual income capable of providing annually for the needs of a seminarian. No matter how small your contribution, it is needed. Help Our Lord to obtain priests for the Diocese of Miami.

Cathedral Concert Feb. 28

The blind French organist, Jean Langlais, has returned to the U.S. for his fifth American tour and will be heard in concert at St. Mary Cathedral at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 28.

The famous musician of Ste. Clotilde Church in Paris, whose Miami appearance is sponsored by Bishop Coleman Carroll, is a native of Brittany, who attended the National Institute for the Young Blind in Paris and the Paris Conservatory of Music.

One of his greatest friends is Olivier Messiaen, who during all the years that Langlais studied with Paul Dukas, assisted him faithfully by reading the details of orchestra scores to him.

For the past 25 years the noted organist and composer has been the director of a mixed choir of blind young people which frequently performs in public. He teaches organ, composition and counterpoint at the National Institute of Young Blind where he is also director of the chorus and conductor.

His most recent composition for the organ, "American Suite," was composed almost entirely during his last stay in the U.S. and recalls his personal impressions of our country with Big Texas, New York on a Sunday Morning, California Evocation, Confirmation in Chicago, Scherzo Cats, At Buffalo Bill's Grave, Boystown, Place of Peace; and Storm in Florida.

Mr. Langlais' second concert for organ and string orchestra, commissioned by Walter Blodgett, Curator of the Cleveland Museum of Art, will be performed during May in Cleveland.

After extensive tours in Europe, the artist made his first U.S. appearance in 1952. His list of recordings is long and one of the latest is a work based on Gregorian chants followed by organ pieces inspired by these melodies. A recent recording of seven Noels for voice and organ taken from old French folksongs sold 1,000 copies in one week.

BLIND ORGANIST and composer, Jean Langlais, from the Basilica of Ste. Clotilde in Paris will be heard in recital at St. Mary Cathedral at 8:30 p.m., Wednesday, Feb. 28. Blind since birth, the noted artist is now on his fifth tour of the United States.

CCD Begins Courses In 4 Locations

CCD classes in Doctrine and Methods opened at four locations in Dade and Broward Counties this week. The first classes were held Monday night at Holy Family School in North Miami and 52 attended the Doctrine class with a smaller group taking the Methods course.

The first-night turnout was gratifying to Confraternity of Christian Doctrine officials but followed the normal attendance pattern.

Father R. E. Philbin, diocesan CCD director, said if the attendance attained at Holy Family became the average it would be the highest yet attained.

As for the lower attendance in Method courses, Father Philbin said it was expected because it is preferred prospective CCD teachers complete the Doctrine course before entering Methods. Also, he said, originally there were only courses in Doctrine and this is the first time Methods has been added to the curriculum.

Another reason, he said, is that Method is taught primarily to those who are now teaching or who plan to teach CCD classes while Doctrine is open to everyone.

Besides the Monday classes at Holy Family School, similar courses began at Immaculate Conception parish Wednesday night and at St. Brenden Thursday night. Classes were also scheduled at St. Thomas Aquinas High School in Fort Lauderdale Tuesday night. All classes begin at 7:30 p.m. and end at 9:30 p.m.

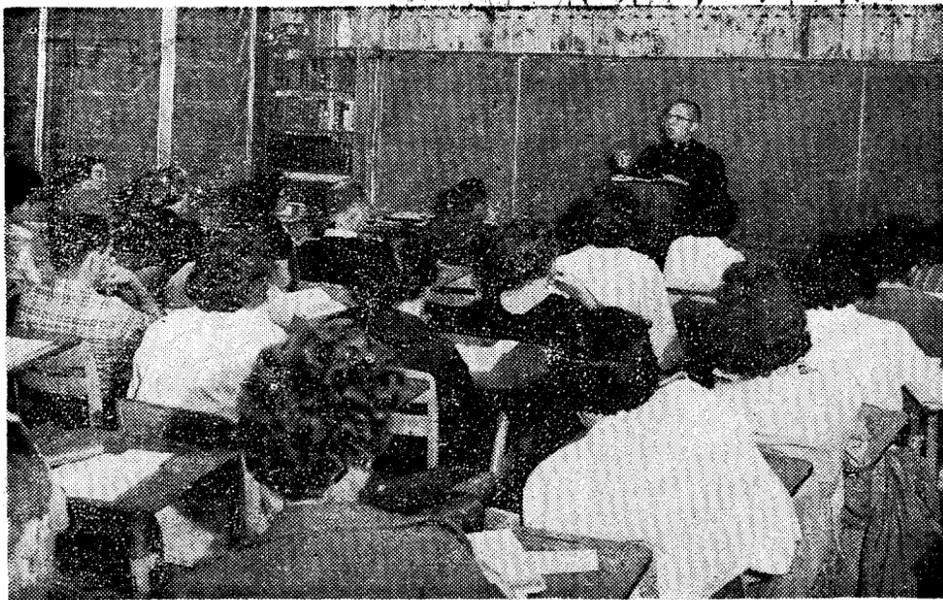

Anyone who missed the first week of classes and wishes to attend can do so by attending next week. Students must attend at least 26 hours of the 30 hours of classes in order to attain credit.

This will be the last such courses until late next fall.

All classes will be taught weekly at the same locations except for two hours of visual aids which will be taught by Sister Mary Joseph, O.P. at Barry College at a time to be announced.

DOCTRINE was the subject for 52 students in one of the opening classes of the CCD in Holy Family School. The class is shown listening to Father Joseph Brunner, assistant pastor, Little Flower Church, Hollywood. A course in Methods is also being offered. Similar CCD classes opened this week in Dade and Broward Counties. The current course is the last until next Fall.

Lay Missionaries Needed, Barry College Students Told

A qualified Catholic layman can gain an acceptance in the mission fields that would take a religious many years, students at Barry College were told Monday.

Father John Sullivan of the Catholic Church Extension Society spoke on behalf of the society's program of enlisting lay volunteers for mission work.

Extension volunteers, he explained, are single Catholics or married couples between the ages of 21 and 40 who are willing to give up a year to work in the home missions. They serve as teachers in Catholic grade and high schools, census and catechetical workers, nurses, secretarial and promotion workers, Newman Club organizers and social workers for dependent children, Father Sullivan said. He emphasized that there is a need for experienced personnel in the places of administration and responsibility.

Transportation from the person's home to the mission, room and board, and a stipend of $50 per month is provided by the Extension program which now has 76 volunteers working in the missions. Of these 61 are graduates of Catholic colleges.

Father Peter Reilly, pastor, Little Flower parish, Coral Gables, is Director of the Extension Volunteer Program in the Miami Diocese and Father John Egan, O.P. is program director at Barry College.

OTHERS PROFESS VOWS

11 Receive Their Habits In Sisters Of St. Joseph

STUART — Detachment from the world, strength of character and incessant prayer are the three secrets of the happiness possessed by members of religious orders of women, parents and friends of the Sisters of St. Joseph of St. Augustine were told during investiture of novices Sunday in the new St. Joseph Church.

Msgr. John J. Fitzpatrick, pastor, Little Flower parish, Hollywood, preached the sermon following low Mass celebrated by Msgr. James F. Enright Miami Vicar for Religious, who invested 11 young women in the black habit and white veil of the congregation. Father Joseph M. McLaughlin, pastor, St. Mark parish, Boynton Beach, was master of ceremonies.

Five young women from the Miami Diocese and six from the Diocese of St. Augustine presented themselves as candidates for the novitiate.

The novices and their names in religion by which they will now be known are Susan Raderman, Gesu parish, Miami, Sister Kevin Joseph; Catherine Lorraine Seese, St. Anthony parish, Fort Lauderdale, Sister Louis Andre; Patricia Agnes Sullivan, St. Juliana parish, West Palm Beach, Sister Agnes Therese;

Marilyn Adele Wheeler, St. Juliana parish, Sister John Anthony; Joanne Marie Wolkill, Holy Family parish, North Miami, Sister Mary Lucy; Margaret Rose Canty, St. Mary parish, Rockledge, Sister Mary Timothy; Mary Lyn Payette and Marlene Payette, Our Lady of Lourdes parish, Melbourne, Sister Mary Vincentia and Sister Gregory Marie;

Judy Ann Williams, Our Lady of the Angels parish, Jacksonville, Sister Mary Celine; Sheila Ann White, St. Paul parish, Jacksonville, Sister Winifred Marie and Joyce Ann Klemmer, St. James parish, Falls Church, Va., Sister Ann Justin.

In addition to parents and friends of the novices, others present included Mother Anna Maria, S.S.J., mother general of the congregation, Mother Mary Louis, S.S.J., Mistress of Novices at Mt. St. Joseph Novitiate, Sisters of St. Joseph, Adrian Dominican Sisters, Sisters of Mercy of Pittsburgh and Carmelite Sisters.

Although the father of Sister Winifred Marie was present for the ceremonies, her mother, Mrs. Grover C. Williams was unable to attend. She was injured in an automobile accident while en route to Stuart from Jacksonville and was being hospitalized at Martin Memorial Hospital here.

Earlier in the day Sister Margaret Joseph of Christ the King parish, Jacksonville made her profession of final vows in the novitiate chapel while Rose Margaret, Sister Maria Giovanni, Sister Mary Carmel, and Sister Miriam Francis received the black veil of the order and professed first vows. Bishop Eduardo Dalmau, C. P. officiated.

Quoting Pope John XXIII, Monsignor Fitzpatrick told the Sisters "Your virginity is holy, understanding, generous; it turns toward the sick, the aged, the poor, the orphaned, and toward widows, adolescents, and children; it walks like a luminous and benevolent angel through hospitals and institutional wards; it stoops patiently and lovingly to comfort school children and to relieve the loneliness of those who are suffering; it dries tears which are hidden from the eyes of the world and it brings smiles and gratitude.

"Yours is a saintly virginity, which finds the surest way to man's heart, to enlighten the uneducated, to counsel the doubtful, to instruct the ignorant, to admonish the sinner, to console the suffering, to recall the wanderer, to arouse enthusiastic apostolic and missionary cooperation."

The strength of character possessed by the Sisters, Monsignor continued, is unsatisfied with "half-way love, half-hearted giving of oneself, self-centered and self-seeking endeavors, but insists first of all on complete, domination of oneself, complete detachment, complete strength, complete routing out of weaknesses so that strong in Our Lord, they can be pillars of strength to those who will come to them for aid."

The third secret, according to the Holy Father, Monsignor Fitzpatrick said, is incessant prayer.

"No one," the Supreme Pontiff said "can become perfect overnight. Strength and virtue cannot be acquired overnight. They must be entreated from God, with great determination and confidence

A prayer born of serene conscience, that is not elated by success and is not couched by sufferings of body and soul, and that expresses itself in purest charity towards all."

The Basilica Of The Immaculate Heart Of Mary

(FATIMA)

Although completed only in the last decade, The Basilica of The Immaculate Heart of Mary in Fatima, Portugal, is one of the best known and most visited shrines in the world. Fatima is a little village far up in the mountains of Portugal, about 90 miles north of Lisbon.

Prior to 1917, Fatima was relatively unknown to the world — and unknown even to most of the populace of Portugal. However, in the years since 1917, this village has become known and revered throughout the entire world, because of the apparitions of The Blessed Virgin Mary to three children of Fatima. For six successive months Our Lady appeared on the 13th day of each month and spoke to Lucia Santos, age ten and her two cousins, Francisco and Jacinta Marta, aged nine and seven, respectively. During her appearances, Mary recommended the frequent recitation of the Rosary and urged works of mortification for the conversion of sinners. On July 13, she declared that the Lord desired devotion to her Immaculate Heart to be established in the world. If this were done, many souls would be saved and there would be peace; otherwise, another and more terrible war would come.

The Basilica itself, rising majestically to a height of 165 feet, stands only a few hundred feet from the little chapel erected on the very spot where the apparitions of Mary took place. This edifice is at the end of the Cova, the area where countless thousands of pilgrims assemble to pay homage to Our Lady.

Holy Name Society Organized In Jupiter

JUPITER — Fifty men were received into the newly formed Holy Name Society of St. Jude parish and officers were elected after the ceremonies.

Father James J. Martin, administrator, conducted the ceremonies. Officers elected were George Mahoney, president; Joseph Oexner, vice president; Paul Liptay, secretary and Peter Albani, treasurer.

Three Priests Die In Red China Jails

HONG KONG (NC) — Word has reached here of the deaths of three Chinese priests imprisoned by China's communist masters.

They were Fathers Silvester T'sa Si-eul, Andrew Tsang Tsong-ming, and Berchmans Tsang Wei-bing.

All had worked in Shanghai. They were probably put in jail during or after the Red campaign of 1957-58 to push the Shanghai clergy into a communist invention known as the "Patriotic Church."

Feast Of St. Francis To Be Holiday In Goa

GOA (NC) — The Indian government has declared the Feast of St. Francis Xavier to be a full holiday in Goa. The 16th-century Apostle of the Indies is the patron saint of Goa. The only other holiday dedicated to a personality is Ghandi's birthday.

The Indian government has also ordained that the feasts of Corpus Christi, the Ascension and the Immaculate Conception will be holidays for Christians only.

Episcopalians Help Holy Ghost Fathers

DETROIT (NC) — A fund raising campaign has been launched among Episcopalians here to assist the Holy Ghost Fathers in memory of the missionaries slain in the Congo.

The campaign was announced by the Very Rev. John J. Weaver, dean of the Episcopal Cathedral of St. Paul. He was one of 37 Protestant clergy men who participated in a retreat given by Bishop John J. Wright of Pittsburgh at the Marydale Retreat House in Erlanger, Ky., last September.

Perfect
Understanding

Throughout our years of service, Catholic families belonging to virtually every parish in Greater Miami have consistently called Lithgow Funeral Centers, time after time, as often as needed.

The continuing preference for Lithgow service by Catholic families previously served is positive proof that we have a perfect understanding of their needs, and that Lithgow service exceeds all requirements. It means, too, that Lithgow prices are considered to be fair and just; otherwise, we wouldn't be called again and again by these families!

'Jealousy Stems From Insecurity'

I'm nearly 17 and a junior in high school. My boyfriend is a senior, almost 18. Lately we've been dating steadily but not steady. He says he loves me, and I love him more than anyone else. The problem is jealousy. Joe gets so mad when another boy asks me for a dance, talks with me, or just looks at me. It hurts me to see him with someone else too. What can I do to cure our jealousy?

At the risk of receiving a flood of criticism for not lecturing you on going steadily and becoming emotionally involved at your age, Della, I'm going to concentrate on your problem of jealousy. Anyone who has followed my writing knows my position on early dating, though judging from the letters I receive as well as from present dating trends, it appears that the subject may well merit more frequent treatment.

The problem of jealousy is interesting because in one form or another it arises in many different types of relationships — in families, classes, teams, business, politics, friendships, and even religion. Indeed, it is not confined to humans. You may have noticed this if you were ever fortunate enough to have two dogs, particularly puppies, to play with, for if you paid too much attention to one, the other would become disturbed and resentful. I don't pretend to know how a jealous puppy really feels under the circumstances, but he certainly appears to react like a human.

Jealousy always stems from a sense of personal insecurity, not from affection or love. This bears repetition. We become suspicious or resentful of the attention that someone we like and esteem shows to another because we are not sure of our own relationship with the person we like. Hence when he pays attention to others, our insecurity prompts us to doubt his affection for us, and we react by becoming angry at him or the others because we are really afraid that we are not liked.

Must Return To Reality

Jealousy is so frequently associated with early emotional involvements because such affairs tend to be falsely exclusive. Forgetting that real love is a part of life and consequently can never be separated from the routine business of living, the couple concentrate wholly upon themselves, mutually flattered that they can mean so much to another and foolishly confident that they can fulfill all of each other's needs. By its very nature this "crush" or "puppy love" stage cannot last long, for it asks of the partners more than they have to offer, so that sooner or later they must return to reality — to a wider circle of friendships, interests, and normal concerns.

At this point in the relationship jealousy may enter in, for although the couple may recognize that their desire for each other's exclusive attention is quite unrealistic, they may not be sure enough of their partner's feelings to trust outside competition. Particularly among the immature, we frequently find love confused with the desire to dominate and control. All outside interests and concerns are regarded as a threat to the love relationship, yet this is not love, but an unhealthy self-centeredness, prompted by vanity or fear and incapable of seeking to promote the real good of the other.

Since Joe is still an adolescent, it is perhaps not surprising that he should show some resentment when you pay attention to other boys and vice versa. Like most boys of his age, he is not all sure that he is capable of holding your affection, and he would find it pleasingly flattering if you committed social suicide and devoted yourself to him exclusively. Most young men gradually acquire sufficient self-confidence to outgrow such unreasonable desires. Unfortunately, a few never do.

Shows An Unhealthy Reaction

Although it is not wholly clear what you mean by "mad" when you say that Joe "gets so mad," if he persists in remaining angry or showing his resentment whenever you dance or talk with another boy, you would do well to drop him until he grows up. Some silly girls are flattered when boys show this unhealthy reaction, and some are even foolish enough to comply with their unreasonable demands for exclusive devotion.

This is a serious mistake, for boys of this type do not know the meaning of love and may never know it. Even in marriage they remain suspicious of every move their wives make, interpreting the most harmless word or gesture as a sign of infidelity.

What can you do to cure your jealousy? Well, Della, once you fully realize that jealousy stems from insecurity rather than love, you will have the solution. If a couple are really in love, they not only trust each other but are pleased by the attention and admiration their partner receives. Indeed, their love would be very weak if they resented or feared such things. You used the word "love," but I think you meant "like," for your actions show that you have not proceeded beyond the stage of a "crush" — which is still one step away from the kind of friendship that may lead to love.

White-Tite Has Proven Durability; Guaranteed 2 Yrs.; No Interest Charge

MORE THAN 12 MONTHS have passed since this roof on the home of Mr. and Mrs. Epstein, 9124 Emerson Avenue, Surfside, Miami Beach, was cleaned, sealed and coated by White-Tite. No mold or mildew has formed on the flat tile roof since the White-Tite process was applied. In fact, the White-Tite coating is much whiter than the paper this photo is printed on. "Not only is the roof still free of mold and fungus," states Bill Snyder, gen. mgr. of White-Tite, "but the roof is brilliantly white, as you can see. The White-Tite process used on all jobs is exclusive with White-Tite. This process has been developed and perfected over a period of 16 years. This is what was done on the Epstein roof. First the roof was thoroughly cleaned and then the edges of the tile were sealed by our special, exclusive process. The sealing process offered by White-Tite rebinds all loose tile and provides better drainage from the roof, as well as giving extra protection against hurricane winds. After the sealing process, two coats of lasting White-Tite coating were put on the entire roof on consecutive days. We are proud of our quality and lasting work. We also feature a three coat process for gravel roofs, which gives the gravel a permanent bond to the roof. All cleaning and coating work is unconditionally guaranteed for two years against mold and fungus and we give you a five-year warranty. When White-Tite does the job for you, we will return anytime for the next two years and clean your walks, walls, patio, awnings and screens free of charge. White-Tite is the 'World's Largest Roof Cleaning-Sealing-Coating Company.' Jesse Scalzo, the founder of White-Tite, Inc., has had 16 years and Snyder 24 years of experience in the roofing business. This experience and the reputation of White-Tite, Inc., "guarantees" you the finest roof coating, best service and best value. False Values Of Teenagers Traced To Parental Attitude

MORRISTOWN, N. J. (NC) — Today's teenagers are falling heir to amoral and materialistic attitudes from their parents. Attitudes from their parents.

That is the warning of Father John M. Fahey, S. J., of Loyola Retreat House, who in the past 10 years has conducted closed retreats for well over 8,000 Catholic boys of high school age.

"Eight out of 40 boys," he said, "have something to say about drinking problems."

"When a kid drinks a lot," he added, "invariably his parents are drinking a lot."

"When a boy has a sex problem, you usually find that there is unfaithfulness or birth control in his home.

"And when a boy of 17 hears his parents criticizing priests about money requests or a sermon against birth control, is it any wonder he winds up critical too?"

Father Fahey sees one other important harmful influence. Catholic boys, he declared, are reading off-color magazines, and this is having "a devastating effect" on them.

Yet Father Fahey is not disillusioned. The boys, he said "have an honesty and frankness and, if they can be reached, a generosity and idealism, that far surpasses the teenagers of my own days."

YOUTH Is Asking . . . ?

Senior In High School Tempted To Drop Out

Dear Doris:

I am 18 and a senior in high school. I don't want to go to school any more. I hate school. And I don't think anybody can make an 18-year-old girl attend school if she doesn't want to, can he? My mother and dad insist that I go. There are 14 in the family and I am the oldest. I would rather work or stay home and help my mother with the housework but she would rather do it herself. She says I can help her later on in the future by going to school now. Should I do what my mother says or should I just quit? My mother says I'll be sorry if I quit school.

You will surely be sorry if you quit school. Your mother and others who have given you reasons for finishing were right. I couldn't add any except to say it seems foolish since you are a senior and have only a few months to go.

Your eagerness to help with the younger children and housework is generous. But you can be far more generous once you are through high school. This is difficult for you to understand now since your dislike of school is uppermost in your mind. But you should try.

You may need extra help to give you the perseverance you need. You have this help in Christ and His sacraments. Go to the sacraments often. Ask our Blessed Lady to help you establish a right attitude toward your problem. Prayer and perseverance will make obeying your parents easy. Go along with them — they are only trying to help you.

Dear Doris:

I recently read an article in a newspaper on whether or not to tell a child he is adopted. I would like the Church's opinion on this. When should he be told and does his age enter into it?

John

The Church has no official opinion on this. But the personnel of child caring agencies of all religions recommend that the child be told as soon as possible. This is done by introducing into his vocabulary (when he is able to understand the meaning) such words as "chosen child" and "adopted." When this is done naturally and gradually with prayers and anecdotes that fit the particular family situation the child's adjustment to the idea is easy and in most cases completely satisfactory.

Dear Doris:

What does a boy mean when he says serious over and over, "Will you wait for me?"

Desperate

I assume he means, "Will you wait for me to grow up, to finish school, to get a job and get settled?" If you don't date anyone else this could be a long wait — and a lonesome one. Why not ask him exactly what he means the next time he mentions it.

Doris Revere Peters answers letters through her column not by mail. Please do not ask for a personal reply. Young readers are invited to write to her in care of The Voice, 6301 Biscayne Blvd., Miami 38, Fla.

The Question Box

On Which Side Of Altar Is Papal Flag Shown?

By MSGR. J. D. CONWAY

Q. I would appreciate it very much if you would settle in my mind just where the papal flag belongs: on which side of the altar.

We have a clipping which states it belongs on the Gospel side, but few agree; the others insist that the National Flag Code should be respected even in church.

A. Since uniformity is lacking in practice I looked up the subject in the National Catholic Almanac. It points out that the National Flag Code requires that the Stars and Stripes must always be given precedence over the flags of other nations; and the papal flag is the emblem of the State of Vatican City.

However, Catholics in the United States used the papal flag as a symbol of the Pope's spiritual authority, as successor to St. Peter and Vicar of Christ. So when it is used inside the Church — or in a procession which is strictly religious — it should be given precedence. That means that it should be on the Gospel side in the church, and on the right — or ahead — in the procession.

However in a parade, e.g., of the Holy Name Society, the American flag takes precedence: i.e., ahead, or on the marching right.

Justification for this precedence to the papal flag as a religious symbol is found in the priority given to the Chaplain's flag in the Army and Navy: it flies above the Stars and Stripes during religious services.

Q. Why is not the Holy Ghost mentioned in the Divine Praises after Benediction? This surely must be an over-life, which makes us holy and prepares us for Heaven.

"Blessed be the Holy Spirit, who sanctifies us."

Q. Is tithing fair? Say there are 2 families and both have the same income, but one has 8 children and lives on a very strict budget, and the other has one child and spends freely. Both are required to tithe 10 per cent. Is it fair?

A. Frankly it doesn't sound fair to me; but I admit that I know little about this tithing business. I do know one man who has 12 children, is faithful at tithing, and claims that it has brought many blessings to him. And I know of a pastor who has made a promise to his parishioners that if any of those who have made and kept the tithing pledge should suffer hardship he would take good care of them. In several years he has not been asked to fulfill this promise.

As I understand it, tithing is a gesture of generosity, over and above the call of duty, as we are accustomed to measure it in most parishes. Generosity which gauges itself by comparison with neighbors loses much of its spontaneity and merit.

Besides most parishes depend for their solid support on the families with 8 children who are on a strict budget. If we had the free spenders we broke.

Hollywood Looks At Movie Morality

By WILLIAM H. MOORING

This has been stock-taking week.

James Francis Cardinal McIntyre at Hollywood's annual communion breakfast, urged 1,200 movie and TV people to resist their industry's "flight from morality." "Morality will be restored to the communications arts through public sensitivity," he said.

How is this to be brought about?

Actor Ricardo Montalban defended censorship "not as suppression but as self discipline." Many Hollywood people agree, but as pointed out by Msgr. John J. Devlin, Archdiocesan representative of the Legion of Decency, "the film industry's own code is so revised it no longer is a bulwark against indecency."

It is true that vulgar escapism (instance the Rock Hudson-Doris Day "comedy," "Lover Come Back"), can be as vicious in moral effect as degrading realism (Paul Newman and Geraldine Page in "Sweet Bird of Youth"), even though offensiveness may not be as clearly pinpointed, nor emotional impact as strong and immediate.

We all might note that Walt Disney, during the last three months of 1961 took $15,634,302 at the theaters, for good wholesome entertainment: not one "art film for mature adults" in the whole lot. Count this in terms of people.

"MATURE ADULTS?"

At the Wisconsin Catholic Action Convention in Milwaukee, where 12 thousand high school students registered, my audience by hand poll showed that more than half attend films recommended only for adults. Keen local workers, Mrs. Milton Woodward and Mrs. Fred Rosenkranz distributed Legion lists and other information. Many of the young people had never seen a Legion list before.

Teachers and parents remarked that many movies currently approved for adults seem morally worse than those once on the objectionable or condemned list.

The Legion of Decency, relying on the good judgment of the film-makers, has allowed the last inch of rope. A few have pulled successfully for better quality films. Others may hang themselves with it.

Boycotts, Movie Code taboos and other once-effective sanctions suddenly are out of date. Does not our best hope lie, then, in appealing to the intelligence, sense of maturity, good taste and individual prudence on which adolescents usually base their struggle for independence?

As parents or teachers how well have we equipped ourselves? Among those of us who patronize degrading, so-called "mature adult" shows, what happens to the virtue of example? And what of parents and teachers who are well-intentioned, but ill-informed?

While in Milwaukee, I heard of one scrupulous mother who insisted that her youngsters see "La Dolce Vita." They were Welles produced it for RKO in 1941, has been named the best film in motion picture history, by 70 international movie critics from 11 nations. Whether or not it was based on fact, "Citizen Kane" was artistic, realistic and morally clean.

The poll taken by the British Film Institute placed only one other American film among the top 10 of all time. Fourth on the list was Eric von Stroheim's "Greed," in which the late Jean Hersholt and Zasu Pitts appeared in 1925.

Italy's "L'Avventura" released here a year ago and condemned only last month by the Legion of Decency, placed second, with Jean Renoir's "Rules of the Game" (1939) third.

Russia's "Potamkin" (1926), originally released to subscription film groups as "Seeds of Freedom," was the only film apart from "Greed," to date back as far as the 1920s. This suggests that foreign film critics, like those in the USA, are short in memory or experience.

France's silent classic, "Les Miserables" (1925), "J'Accuse" (1919), Germany's "Waxworks" (1924), "Metropolis" (1926) and "Manon Lescaut" (1926), like D. W. Griffith's "Birth of a Nation" and "Intolerance," with many other great, artistic movies of the past, are forgotten. Riding the new wave "L'Avventura" and "Hiroshima Mon Amour" (a runner-up) are remembered.

shocked and bewildered. She had, of course, confused the Legion's "Separate Classification" (cautioning against false conclusions) with its "Special recommendation" (urging general patronage). In whatever direction the Legion of Decency may move, plenty is left up to teachers and parents.

Don't Be Too Soft, POAU Members Told

CHICAGO (NC) — Glenn L. Archer, executive director of Protestants and Other Americans United for Separation of Church and State, issued a solemn warning here to "appealing Protestants" against being soft on Catholicism.

"Appealing Protestants today will become the Neville Chamberlains of tomorrow," he warned at the 14th national POAU conference attended by some 400 clergy and laymen.

Archer declared that the "chief enemies" of religious rights are "economic communism, Roman clericalism and public apathy."

McARTHUR DAIRY'S SAFETY PROGRAM CUTS VEHICLE ACCIDENTS 85%

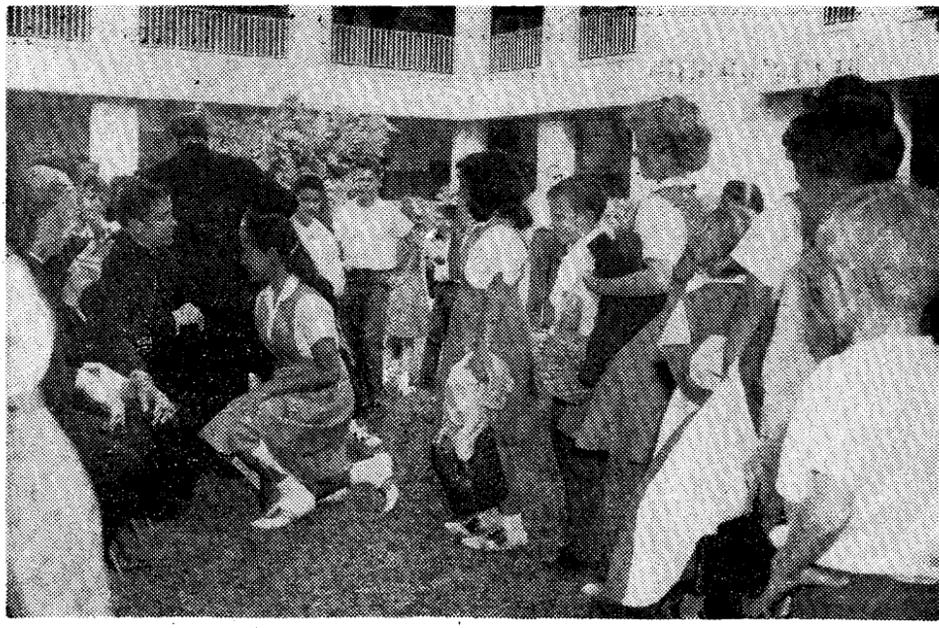

Safety Director of McArthur Dairy, Bill Wilkerson, and Jean McArthur Davis point proudly to the sticker that tells this car is equipped with seat belts, and is a member of the McArthur Dairy "Seatt" Belt Club. Looks like a wrong spelling, but it really stands for "Safety Everywhere All The Time", the slogan of McArthur Dairy's safety program, which in the last year has cut down vehicle accidents 85%. The Seatt Belt Club aims at passenger car safety too!

NEW PEOPLES NATIONAL BANK OF MIAMI SHORES BUILDING UNDER CONSTRUCTION

Mr. Leonard A. Usina, the Chairman of the Board, and the management of the 12-year old Peoples National Bank of Miami Shores ordered construction to begin on their long-planned new bank building, directly south of the present quarters, on the southeast corner of 95th St. and Northeast Second Ave. Construction is progressing well, using a portion of the large area formerly used for parking.

The new two-story structure will have over 18,000 square feet of floor area, and will have four double walk-up windows, as well as five drive-in stations. The exterior is in keeping with the residential character of Miami Shores Village, in the Colonial Style reminiscent of the fine examples of early nineteenth century architecture of New Castle, Delaware and the restorations at Williamsburg, Virginia.

STUDENTS of St. Michael the Archangel School were greeted by Bishop Rio Frio, visiting from Ecuador, during a celebration for the feast day of St. Romuald, the patron saint of Father R. E. Philbin, pastor of St. Michael Church. Many Latin students are enrolled in the school.

"If your lips would keep from slips

Five things observe with care:

To whom you speak, of whom you speak,

And how, and when, and where."

This anonymous little jingle sounds much like it may have been born in a wartime setting. However, it has merit under any condition. It might be a caution against thoughtless, malicious gossip capable of no good and much harm. It might forestall the wrong word at the wrong time, the unfortunate word that seldom can be retracted.

It is possible to measurably forestall some of the pain and anguish of bereavement by reliance on a complete service. Such services — complete in every respect — are available at G. D. PEDEN FUNERAL HOME, Catholic Funeral Home, 8231 Bird Road, Ambulance service. Phone CA 6-1811.
